Class '52

Commencement 1952

Welcome '52

As the Irish say—"Caed Mille Failte"—"A Hundred Thousand Welcomes to You".

The Alumni Association would even outdo the Gaels if it could in welcoming the Class of 1952. Your brothers (there will be sisters too, soon) want you to look upon your Association and the new Alumni Hall, fitted out at great expense, as another home to which you may retire to relax, keep up old friendships and even to seek counsel in the years that lie ahead.

The bond that now ties you to your classmates, woven by gay and golden years of college life, is close and dear indeed. But time will loosen it unless it is perennially strengthened. There is no better place for continually renewing old friendships than in the place where they were first formed.

Your identity as a class, more anonymous at the Heights, will change now. Each of you is now an ambassador-at-large from Boston College. Your triumphs will exalt her name, your deeds will form part of her living history.

Your Alumni Association welcomes you—831 strong—because You are the new seed, the hope of the future. B. C. will live in You. The support of every one of You is needed if the work of B. C. is to be perpetuated and her name embellished. Her seal is irrevocably signed upon You. Destiny may take You far away. As in the past business, industry, the professions and the priesthood will claim your members. But, in the future, like the light house in the storm, it is good to have somewhere to go to renew your spirit. What place is more suitable than the Heights and Alumni Hall?

So join the 15,000 members of the Alumni Association who are bound in a social, educational and spiritual union of interests, struggling to keep our culture and religion strong.

Men of '52! Welcome! Keep up your contacts with the college. May the memories of Alma Mater always cling to your heart and may the youth of your ambitions, like the life of the phoenix be continually renewed at the Heights.

"A Hundred Thousand Welcomes to You". We need You, and we do mean You!

New Officers Elected

LEO C. DONAHUE '29 ALUMNI PRESIDENT

At the annual election in June, Leo C. Donahue, '29, assistant superintendent of the Somerville schools, was elected president of the Alumni Association.

First vice-president is Francis X. Sullivan, '29, head of the English department at Roxbury Memorial High School for Girls; second vice-president, Attorney Robert J. Glennon, '34. Joseph L. Tribble, '24, National Transitsads, Inc., was elected treasurer and Edward M. Gallagher, Jr., '32, Kaler, Carney Lissler Co., secretary.

Newly elected directors are Rev. George V. Kerr, '41, and Attorney Walter R. Morris, '26.

In accordance with the amendment to the constitution providing for the appointment by the president of two directors to the Alumni Board on a geographical basis, President Donahue has appointed Bernard Frazier, '41, president of the Boston College Club of New York, and Attorney

LEO C. DONAHUE, '29

James F. O'Donnell, '44, Washington, D. C. club president.

Elected to serve on the Graduate Athletic Board are Rev. Charles W. McCarthy, '40, and Thomas F. Meagher, '31.

THANKS TO BILL CASHIN '18

For the first time in more than a decade the Alumni Association will not have William M. Cashin, '18, among its representatives on the Alumni Board of Directors. His years of faithful service that included terms as president, vice-president and treasurer of the Association are remembered with gratitude by his associates on the board and all his fellow Alumni who benefited by his efforts in their behalf. We extend our sincere thanks to this exemplary Alumnus of Boston College for his loyalty, cooperation and kindly counsel at all times.

REV. ALBERT F. MCGUINN, S.J.

A GOLDEN JUBILEE

Rev. Ignatius W. Cox, S.J. will celebrate his Golden Jubilee as a Jesuit this year (1902-1952). Father Cox spent ten years 1904-1914, as professor of Classics at the old Boston College on Harrison Avenue. From 1919 to 1922 he was professor of Philosophy at the Heights. As an inspiring teacher, an eloquent preacher and lecturer, and a sage counsellor of youth, he is well remembered by many friends and students of Boston College. At present, Father Cox is lecturing in Theology at Fordham University. To his friends in Boston he sends this note:—"Rev. Ignatius W. Cox, S.J., invites his former friends and pupils to offer with him the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass and to share with him the Eucharistic Bread of Thanksgiving in gratitude to God for bountiful blessings bestowed during fifty years of Religious life in the Society of Jesus, 1902-1952." The Holy Mass of Thanksgiving will be celebrated in the University Chapel of Fordham University on Sunday, October 19 at 9:00 A.M.

Bishop Wright '31 Recipient of Alumni Medal

MOST REV. JOHN J. WRIGHT, D.D.

On Alumni Day in June, the William V. McKenney Medal annually awarded to the outstanding alumnus of Boston College was presented to His Excellency, Most Rev. John J. Wright, D.D., '31, Bishop of Worcester.

In honoring Bishop Wright the Alumni Association pays tribute to one whose spiritual and scholastic achievements reflect great credit on Alma Mater and his fellow Alumni.

FR. MCGUINN RECEIVES HONORARY DEGREE

At Commencement exercises in June, the University of Massachusetts conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Science on Rev. Albert F. McGuinn, S.J., chairman of the Department of Chemistry at the College. The following citation accompanied the degree: "Father Albert Francis McGuinn, Jesuit scientist and teacher, member of our reunion class of 1922, currently and for fourteen years chairman of the Department of Chemistry at Boston College, recently chosen by the American Chemical Society to be chairman of its influential and highly regarded Committee on Chemical Education; your studies in detoxication may perhaps be mentioned as symbolic of your distinctive academic service, that of coordinating the marvels of scientific sight with the mysteries of spiritual insight. Your Alma Mater values you as a loyal alumnus and a consecrated teacher."

Cambridge Club Presents Gifts to Fr. Rector

PRESENTING GIFT TO FATHER MAXWELL

Left to right: Bill Flynn, executive sec'y, Alumni Association; Rep. Thomas F. Coady, Jr., president Cambridge B.C. Club; Father Maxwell, and M. Francis Nolan, chairman program committee.

Cambridge

Officers of the Cambridge Club for the coming year are: President, Salvatore Romeo, M.D., Intown, '47; 1st Vice-President, John F. Coady, '49; 2nd Vice-President, Alfred DeVito, '48; Treasurer, Thomas J. McLaughlin, Intown, '35; Secretary, Joseph F. Carney.

In three years the Club has contributed $1,000 for the maintenance of Alumni Hall. The last gift of $350.00 presented recently to the president of the College has been used to install a sound system at the Hall.

Connecticut

John P. Sheedy, president of the Connecticut Club, has plans for the annual dinner to be held in November. The annual election of officers will take place at that time. Members will be notified shortly of the date and place of the get-together.

Western Mass.

More than 200 people were present at the joint B.C. and Holy Cross clam-bake sponsored by the Springfield Club on September 10. This annual affair attracts more alumni each year, and president Phil Callan proudly announces that B. C. beat H. C. in a softball classic 4-2.

Washington, D. C.

On Friday, September 19, the officers of the Club held a meeting and planned a program for the coming year to include a smoker in October, a public wire broadcast and cocktail party for the B.C.-H.C. football game, the annual Communion Breakfast at Georgetown University, and a Spring dance. The regular monthly luncheon meetings have been resumed with members meeting the last Monday of each month at 12:30 P.M., at Bonats Restaurant, Vermont Avenue and K Street, N.W.

Officers of the Club for the coming year are: Atty. James F. O'Donnell, '44, President; John J. Mitchell, '37, 1st Vice-President; Gerald R. Amanti, 2nd Vice-President; Charles F. B. McAleer, '44, Secretary; Albert L. McDermott, '44, Treasurer; Rev. Joseph Teletchea, '39, Chaplain. Members of the steering committee are Thomas J. Flavin and Charles A. Donelan.

B. C. men in the Washington area will be informed of Club activities if they contact Secretary Charles McAleer at WISconsin 1969 or James O'Donnell at REpublic 8505.

West Roxbury

The West Roxbury Club plans a series of lectures, dinners and entertainments to be spaced throughout the current year, and may revive the local Communion breakfast in the Spring.

Club president is Nathaniel J. Hasenfus, '22. Vice-Presidents, Charles W. O'Brien and Francis J. Irons; Secretary, Thomas O'C. Murray, '43; Treasurer, Edward F. Barrett, '40; Advisory Board, Martin A. Lorenz, '01, Edward F. Brickley, '25, Mathias O'Malley, '33.

ART and SCIENCE

In spite of the fact that the Boston College of 1952 is made up of eight different schools, all granting Boston College degrees, it remains true that many of our Alumni think of Boston College as the College of Arts and Sciences. In their day no other school existed.

The College of Arts and Sciences is the oldest and the largest of the schools. Last year its enrollment was a little over eighteen hundred students. Just as in the days of the oldest alumnus, the liberal arts are stressed. The treasures of world culture, as found in the works of the great philosophers, classical and modern writers, scientists, historians and theologians, are transmitted in the traditional way with the purpose of developing the Complete Man, the true Citizen of Two Worlds.

It is possible for the student of today to do more specialized work in a chosen field of concentration than in the time of most of our Alumni. He may concentrate in any of the following fields: Biology, Chemistry, Classics, Economics, English, Government, History, Mathematics, Modern Languages, Modern Psychology, Physics and Sociology. In each of these fields of special concentration he is offered an opportunity to acquire sound training and skill, yet care is taken that every student follows a sufficient number of required courses in philosophy, literature and history to avoid narrowing his appreciation of the vast areas of human culture which are beyond his own special field. All of the curricula aim at the development of men who are equipped to compete successfully in their particular field and who are sufficiently founded in the broader branches of learning to deserve to be called liberally educated men in the truest sense of that title.

The Deans

BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

The College of Business Administration opened in 1938 with 74 Freshmen. This Autumn, it has 350, bringing the total enrollment to 1150, nearly the capacity of Fulton Hall—known to many graduates as "The C. B. A."

The curriculum has been shaped to guide students into those special areas of business best suited to their personal talents and preferences. After basic training for two years, the student specializes in Accounting, Finance, Industrial Management or Marketing. The Business Administration program is built around the traditional core of Jesuit education—Languages, History, Philosophy and Theology—so that on graduating, the student has roots in Catholic culture as well as technical business skills. Every effort is made to make the student conscious of his need to live with and for other persons as well as to do business with them.

Boston College men who have the degree of Bachelor of Science in Business Administration have entered the fields of accounting, insurance, real estate, banking, investments, production, management, personnel work, industrial relations, sales, sales management, retailing, government service, teaching in colleges and secondary schools; others have continued their studies in graduate schools of business administration, economics or law; and, proving that the arm of the Lord is not shortened in these latter days, a score of former students are preparing for the priesthood or religious life.

In its brief history, the College of Business Administration has tried to blend the old and the new, theory and practice. What it has accomplished is, of course, not fully known. To date, the best indications we have of its effectiveness are unsolicited commendations of its graduates received from older businessmen, and the continued interest of the Alumni in its growth.

SCHOOL of EDUCATION

The School of Education, latest addition to the colleges of the University, welcomed 175 Freshmen when classes opened this fall. There are 111 women and 64 men; among them students from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Maine, and Panama, as well as two Missionary Sisters of Mary. Out-of-state women have been placed in homes which have been carefully selected by Miss Helen Walsh and Miss Margaret E. Byrne of the Alumnae Association, with the approbation of the parents. The majority of the Freshmen, including a sprinkling of men, have elementary school teaching as their objective. Other areas in which students will specialize are secondary education, art education, and business subjects.

Classes will be held for the most part on the second floor of Gasson Hall (Tower Building). Alumni are invited to inspect these rooms, which have been completely redecorated and modernized. The Tower Reference Library, which in earlier days was the Senior B classroom and earlier still housed the College library, is now a well-equipped Curriculum Library, set up and supervised by Sister Josephina, S.S.J., a full-time member of the Education faculty. The west end of this room (which during the war was the bookstore and later the Philosophy office) has been blocked off and serves now as a combination faculty room and Dean of Women's office. The old cafeteria (under T100) has been remodeled as a lounge and locker room for the women of the School of Education. The girls will have two periods of Physical Education a week in the Mt. Alvernia Academy gymnasium, has evolved from a few courses a week which were offered some forty years ago. Since 1934 the graduate work has been concentrated at the Chestnut Hill campus where it enjoys the facilities of the Bapst Library and the science laboratories. The majority of its courses are taught at 4:30 on Mondays through Fridays, and at 9:00 and 11:00 on Saturdays. There are also a few courses in education, economics and sociology on weekday evenings.

At the present time the Graduate School limits itself to granting the master's degree. In ten departments it grants a master of arts degree: Classics, Economics, English, Gaelic, History and Government, Mathematics, Philosophy, Romance Languages (French and Spanish), Social Studies, and Sociology. In four departments it grants a master of science degree: Biology, Chemistry, Geo-Physics, and Physics. In the department of Education, in which a master's degree in education is granted, there is provision for concentration in elementary and secondary school work, in guidance, in administration, and in nursing education.

With the 1952-53 school year, candidates will be accepted for a certificate of Advanced Educational Specialization. The program will consist of thirty approved education credits. The certificate is available for those who have a master's degree and three years of teaching experience.

Those who are interested in learning more specific details about the aims and courses of the Graduate School should write to Rev. Charles A. Farrington, S.J., Assistant Dean, for the most recent catalogue.

GRADUATE SCHOOL

The present coeducational graduate school with fifteen departments

INTOWN SCHOOL

Boston College Intown, B. C.'s coeducational evening College of Arts and Sciences and Business Administration, is commencing the school year with another capacity enrollment. Last year there were 800 evening students of whom 400 were men and 400 were women. At Commencement 70 graduates received their B. C. degrees after completing the six-year program.

The Intown College is located in B. C.'s off-campus building at 126 Newbury St., Boston, and Alumni who find themselves in the Copley Square section are invited to drop in at any time to visit and see the Library, the new Chapel and the various offices. Fr. John Ryan, S.J., B. C. '30, the Dean of the Intown College will be glad to welcome any of the Alumni.

The purpose of the Intown College is to give students who have to work for a living in the daytime the opportunity to gain a college degree by evening study. Normally, it takes a student six years to complete the college program, though students who also attend evening summer sessions may finish in five years. Major fields of study are offered in English, Social Sciences, Accounting, and General Business and lead to a regular Boston College Degree. The Faculty is composed almost entirely of Professors from the Day College at the Heights and is about evenly balanced between Jesuit and Lay Professors.

The school spirit at the Evening College has always been exceptionally good and the students under their Student Council somehow find time to sponsor a number of interesting social and charitable events. Members of the Alumni are asked to call to the attention of their friends this opportunity for working people of all ages to attend Boston College.

LAW SCHOOL

The Law School began its 24th academic year in September with an enrollment of approximately 400 students, and with the fond hope of celebrating its 25th anniversary in a new Law School Building on the University Heights Campus.

Since its foundation in 1929 and the graduation of its first class in 1932, the Law School has conferred the degree of Bachelor of Laws upon a total of 1323 graduates. Its students have come from more than one hundred and fifty colleges and universities, from thirty states, and several foreign countries and territories. The youthfulness of the Boston College Law School is reflected in the fact that more than half of its Alumni or 695, were graduated since the end of World War II. Nevertheless the School has already given some twenty alumni to the judiciary and two deans and a dozen professors to accredited law schools in the United States. Alumni are now actively practicing in a majority of the states, from Bangor, Maine, to Los Angeles, California, and from Miami, Florida, to Portland, Oregon. Six of the alumni are practicing in Honolulu, Hawaii, where one of them is a member of the Board of Bar Examiners. The Honolulu Boston College Club is one of the most loyal and enthusiastic units of our alumni.

The Faculty of the Law School, two of whom, Professors Cornelius J. Moynihan and William J. O'Keefe, have served more than twenty years, are justly proud of the national reputation which the School has earned in both professional and educational circles. The academic standards of the School and its record in the bar examinations are a magnificent tribute to a devoted and scholarly Faculty. The high regard and enthusiastic support of the bench and bar deepens the conviction that the Law School has an inspiring future in equipping young men and women of intelligence, industry and character for positions of public service and leadership in the administration of justice.

The present position of the School has been achieved despite severe handicaps. A month after its opening, albeit without causal connection, came the great stock market collapse of 1929. The School's infancy coincided with the great economic depression. Its adolescence was hardly complete when World War II almost emptied its classrooms. Its present vigorous maturity, despite the Korean Action and the threat of World War III promises a great future.

The severest handicap of the School has been its lack of adequate physical quarters. In its short history the School has been forced to occupy leased space in three different locations, which inspired the remark of a former President of the College that "we can't continue to operate a law school from a covered wagon." The School has been successively located at 11 Beacon Street, 441 Stuart Street, and now, on the fringe of decency, at 18 Tremont Street near Scollay Square. High rents have been a financial problem for the administration; poor physical facilities have tried the patience of both Faculty and students. The loyalty of Faculty, students and alumni during the years is the great hope of the future.

And now, thank God, the sun is breaking through the clouds. With the completion of Fulton Hall and Lyons Hall on the Heights, the Law School looks forward to its own building on the campus. It is planned to construct the new building near St. Ignatius' Church so that it will be near the street car and bus lines for the convenience of students in the Evening Division.

The Law School Building will contain, besides ample provisions for administrative and faculty offices and classrooms, a law library with a reading room seating two hundred, a spacious browsing room for quasi-legal materials, book stacks for an eventual capacity of two hundred thousand volumes, individual study carrels for graduate students, seminar rooms, a moot court room, a students' lounge and cafeteria, students' lockers and other conveniences which will make the Law School a completely self-contained unit on the University Heights campus. The new building will be designed to provide every necessary and useful facility for students who wish to pursue the study of law in an atmosphere of scholarship and culture, surrounded by extraordinary architectural and natural beauty.

The new building will signal the rise of a greater Boston College Law School and a tremendous contribution to the public life and the preservation of justice in New England and in the United States.

The School of Social Work

Entering its seventeenth year of service to the community, the school of social work can point with pride to its impact upon all areas of social work through its growing alumni body. That group now numbers 440, with close to 90% still connected, in some way or other, with social work. Actually most of that 10% who have left the field are girls who have married and settled down to the definitely social task of raising a family.

Of the total alumni group of 440, 146 did their undergraduate studies at Boston College, 72 at Emmanuel, 32 at Holy Cross, 23 at Regis, 8 at Providence, and the remaining 159 at some 60 other institutions of learning spread across the country.

As of the opening of school this year, the total enrollment of the Boston College School of Social Work was 90 full-time students (45 in each of the two years) and some 35 part-time students. They represent approximately 45 different colleges and include students from Puerto Rico, India, Hawaii, and China.

With such wide geographical distribution it is not surprising to find our alumni exerting a real influence on social work nationally. They hold important posts in Catholic Charities, Community Organizations, the armed forces, the Red Cross, social security agencies, public welfare departments, the Veteran's Bureau, health and guidance clinics of every kind, in hospitals throughout the land, schools and colleges, family agencies, the courts, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in group work with youth, and in industrial relations:

At great financial sacrifice,—for the school has always operated at a loss,—Boston College has thus placed in key roles throughout the land young men and women imbued with a sound philosophy and religious reverence for the dignity of the individual. It is no small contribution to the work of bringing Christ into the marketplace.

The School of Nursing

The School of Nursing began its sixth year with the largest enrollment in the history of the school. 57 Freshman were admitted to the Basic Collegiate Program which brings the total in this course to 188 students. In the Graduate Nurse Program there are 101 full-time and 306 part-time students, making in all, 595 students attending classes at 126 Newbury St., and at the Heights. In addition extra-mural courses are given in Worcester, Springfield, Fitchburg, Lynn and elsewhere but, at the time of writing, the number of students in these courses had not been tabulated.

Since 1949, the Bachelor of Science degree has been conferred on 186 graduates. Of this number 27 were members of the first class of the Basic Collegiate Program who graduated in June, 1952.

There has been some misconception, even among Alumni, about the purpose of the School of Nursing. The aim is NOT to train administrators, supervisors, head nurses, etc., but an excellent bed-side nurse. As in other professional fields the collegiate program in Nursing is designed to form and inform a mature, poised, well-educated woman whose nursing education and training is founded on and enriched by the theological, philosophical, literary and scientific studies of her course. As a Catholic nurse she is equipped to meet and to solve the personal and social as well as professional problems which are involved in complete nursing care of a patient. Moreover she is given the foundation needed for any higher studies she may wish to take to advance in her chosen profession.

Rev. Thomas F. Fleming, S.J., new executive assistant to the president of the college.

NEW FACULTY MEMBERS

Rev. Charles A. Farrington, S.J., '39, has been appointed assistant dean of the Graduate School; Rev. Charles Reardon, S.J., is the newly appointed Student Counsellor. Teaching Science and Math is Rev. John J. McCarthy, S.J.; Rev. Joseph W. Murphy, S.J., '30, History; Rev. William H. Hohmann, S.J., Philosophy; Rev. Francis P. Molloy, S.J., '40, Philosophy; Rev. Carl Thayer, S. J., '36, Humanities; Rev. Alexander A. Tait, S.J., is replacing Rev. Edward T. Douglas, S.J., '19 who will spend a year at Loyola University, Los Angeles, as professor of Religion.

Additions to the lay faculty for the coming year include: Joseph E. King, '36, History; Dr. John J. Donovan, '39, Sociology; Samuel J. Miller, Ohio State University, History; Dr. Lorenzo Calabi, University of Milan, Mathematics; George Bereyday, Oxford University, will teach History in the Graduate School.

Reverend J. F. X. Murphy, S. J.

With the death of Father John F. X. Murphy, S.J., there passed from our campus its best known and best beloved professor. Teaching at the Heights for twenty-three years, Father Murphy endeared himself to an entire generation of B. C. men. J. F. X. — everybody, professors and students, spoke of him only by his initials — was extraordinary in so many ways. He was a paragon of learning; the vast range of his erudition in History, the Classics, English Literature, Art, Architecture and Theology, was a source of never ending astonishment to all who listened to him. He was an excellent teacher, implanting the golden wisdom of life in a way that it could never be lost. Every one of his classes was an exciting event. He lectured eloquently, he illustrated his matter with apt phrase and striking epithet, and he seasoned the gravest subjects with humor and fun. Who will ever forget him: short and stout, pacing constantly back and forth, speaking in rapid accents, stopping now and then to shout out a point, for emphasis — no one ever nodded in J. F. X.'s classes. His digressions were famous; yet they were seldom digressions in the strict sense, but rather wider de-vlopments veined with precious learning. Time meant little to him; a "brief" extra-curricular lecture usually lasted for two hours, to be followed often by an informal discussion for two more. But the lectures were always crowded, and few passed up the after-talks. J. F. X. dedicated himself to his students, as much to the slow and less-gifted as to the brilliant and more talented — all he asked of the inquirer was sincerity. He held in affectionate memory the students of the five Jesuit colleges in which he taught; but, as he said more than once, he loved the men of Boston College best of all. The well-spring of Father Murphy's learning and activity was his passionate devotion for Holy Mother Church; he was her valiant champion in every conflict.

Professor Francis X. C. Balling

Professor Francis X. C. Balling, lecturer on Economics in the Graduate School, died suddenly at his summer home in South Ryegate, Vermont on the morning of August 6.

Born in Vienna, Austria in 1895, he studied law at the Universities of Vienna and Innsbruck, receiving his D. J. degree from the former in 1920. He served as legal adviser to private industries and was active in the Banking profession.

In a protest against Nazism, he left his native land and came to the United States in 1939. Here he received a Ph.D. in economics from Fordham. In 1948, he joined the faculty of Boston College. He was an authority in the fields of economic theory and international economic relations. Professor Balling is survived by his wife and one daughter Mrs. Thomas.

Oddly enough B. C. gets an Admiral at a time when one of its beauty spots and natural adornments, the picturesque little lake nestling at its feet upon which the towers on the Heights often reflect, is fast disappearing before an onslaught of dump trucks. So the steady steps of time and the immutable law of compensation continue to give and take.

Last August an outstanding hero alumnus was honored by the U. S. Navy. Bartholomew William Hogan was raised to the rank of Rear Admiral. He has been the Commanding Officer at the famed U. S. Naval Hospital, National Naval Medical Centre, Bethesda, Maryland since last year.

Bart, to his friends, is a navy career man with 27 years service. Born in West Quincy on January 29, 1901 he attended B. C. High, Boston College, where he took the pre-medical course, and Tufts from which he received his medical degree. Shortly afterwards in 1925 he entered the medical corps of the Navy. Since that time his rise has been rapid and well merited. Very early in his career he demonstrated the qualities of efficiency, learning and leadership that were to mark his rise to eminence. As far back as 1931, he was Chief of Neuro-psychiatry at the U. S. Naval Hospital, Philadelphia. Ensuing years found him serving as Associate Professor of Psychiatry at Georgetown University; instructor at the Naval Medical School, Washington, D. C., and on a number of naval assignments that included Chief of Medicine, U. S. Naval Hospital, Naval Academy, Annapolis; Assistant Personnel Officer in charge of V-12 pre-medical and pre-dental programs; Senior Medical Officer on the hospital ship Tranquility, and Commanding Officer, Mare Island Naval Hospital.

It was, however, as Senior Medical Officer on the aircraft carrier Wasp during the war that he really catapulted to fame. On September 14, 1943 in the waters off Guadalcanal the Wasp was sunk after a bitter engagement with the enemy. Although wounded himself, Admiral Hogan continued to care for the wounded and dying. For this action he received the Silver Star and the Purple Heart. The Navy and Marine Corps Medal was awarded to him for outstanding work in combat waters on board the destroyer Duncan.

A fighting man with the tender sympathetic heart of a physician, Bart Hogan has found time to publish numerous professional papers dealing with the Navy's medical and dental training programs, pharmacological shock therapy and mental hygiene for Naval Academy textbooks. One of his most recent treatises was on the psychological reactions of surviving personnel following the torpedoing of the Wasp. He is also a Fellow of the American Medical Association, American College of Physicians, and the American Psychiatric Association.

Bart's chin is the key to his personality. It is strong and determined. He loathes cant, hypocrisy and inefficiency. He won't stand for anyone who tries to "throw his weight around" rather than his ability.

Behind the scenes he is a loving father and exemplary husband. Charming Mrs. Hogan is the former Grace Gloninger of Emmitsburg, Maryland. She is also a physician. At nearby Chevy Chase, Bart, Jr., 17, Thomas, 14, and Mary, 6, enjoy an ideal Catholic home.

So to our illustrious alumnus, Admiral Hogan, Catholic gentleman, hero, physician, author, and ideal Navy man go the congratulations of the 15,000 B. C. men of the Alumni Association and the undergraduates of Boston College.

HOW THE SOVIETS COMMUNIZE A COUNTRY

By
John J. Mitchell '37

Frankfurt, Germany. Congressional Committee meets with European and American Press. Standing on right, Counsel John J. Mitchell, '37.

What would happen to the United States if 15,000 individuals — leaders of Commerce and Industry, Legislators, Doctors, Lawyers, Rabbis, Catholic Priests, Government Officials, Military Officers and Border Guards — were to be rounded up and liquidated at the outbreak of war?

Do you honestly think the Soviets have failed to catalog the personal dossier or history of such leaders in the United States?

Will this story of the Katyn Massacre become an everlasting reminder and spur you on to combat Atheistic Communism regardless of the disguise it may assume, or will it be quickly forgotten and the "Let George Do It" attitude prevail, notwithstanding the fact that Katynism can happen here?

White House. President Truman with members of Congressional Committee investigating the Katyn Forest Massacre. John J. Mitchell, '37, Chief Counsel, at rear right.

CREATION AND PURPOSE OF SELECT COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE KATYN FOREST MASSACRE

PROCEDURE

This committee was confronted with the difficult task of determining whether the Germans or the Soviets were responsible for this colossal crime. Each country had accused the other.

The task assigned this committee is without precedent in the history of the United States House of Representatives. But likewise without precedent is the fact that never before in the history of the world have two nations accused each other of such an atrocious crime with the identity of the nation actually guilty never having been sufficiently established.

Until the creation of this committee this crime was destined to remain an international mystery and the conscience of the world could never have rested.

On September 18, 1951, the House of Representatives unanimously adopted House Resolution 390. This resolution provided for the establishment of a select committee of Congress and authorized it to conduct a full and complete investigation concerning an international crime committed against soldiers and citizens of Poland at the beginning of World War II. This committee was given the responsibility to record evidence, take testimony, and study all facts and extenuating circumstances pertaining directly or indirectly to the barbarous massacre of thousands of Polish Army officers and civilian leaders buried in mass graves in the Katyn Forest on the banks of the Dnieper in the vicinity of Smolensk, U. S. S. R.

Fully aware then that this was the first neutral committee ever officially authorized by any government to investigate the Katyn massacre, this committee divided its investigation into two phases:

(1) Assemble evidence which would determine the guilt of the country responsible for the mass murder of these Polish Army officers and intellectuals in the Katyn Forest.

(2) Establish why the Katyn massacre with all of its ramifications never was adequately revealed to the American people and to the rest of the world. The committee likewise included in this phase an effort to determine why this crime was not adjudicated at the Nuremberg trials — where it should have been settled in the first instance if the Germans were guilty.

It was unanimously agreed by the committee that phase I of the Investigation would be undertaken first and this interim report will include an analysis only of this phase. Testimony heard thus far has of necessity touched on phase II but additional study will be required before any conclusions can be reached.

Public hearings on phase II will continue on November 17, 1952 in Washington, D.C., and at this time I am not at liberty to discuss the subject matter.

HISTORICAL FACTS

On September 1, 1939 Germany declared war on Poland and thus World War II began because on September 3, 1939, France and England lived up to their Treaty and Diplomatic Agreements with Poland and declared war on Germany. During the first 17 days of September 1939 the Nazi juggernaut had swept across two-thirds of Poland driving the Polish Army back to the Bug River. On September 17, 1939 the Soviet Army crossed the Polish border without a declaration of war and, under the guise of coming to the Pole's assistance occupied the remaining one-third of Poland where they are today as one can see by comparing a pre-war map with the present map of Poland.

September 28, 1939 the world is stunned with the announcement of the Ribbentrop-Molotov Pact whereby Poland is divided with Germany taking 72,806 square miles, population 22 million and the Soviets taking 77,620 square miles, population 13 million.

During the next nine months between 1,500,000 and 3 million Polish people (no one knows the exact number) as well as the captured Polish Army are transported to slave labor camps in Soviet Russia. Many thousands of Polish citizens remain in those camps even to this day. From September 1939 through March 1940 a deliberate well organized plan was executed by the NKVD to separate Polish Army officers and intellectual leaders from the mass of other Polish prisoners and the placing of those selected in three camps in Soviet Russia, namely; Kozielsk, 5,000, Starobielsk, 4,000 and Ostashkov, 6,400. The total number in all three camps 15,400.

The Congressional Committee at the very beginning of its investigation decided that all hearings conducted by the committee would be open to the public and to the world, and that they would invite any individual, organization or government having possession of factual evidence or information pertaining to the Katyn Massacre. Consequently, formal invitations were extended to the four governments involved namely; the U.S.S.R., the Polish government in Warsaw, the Polish government-in-exile in London and the German Federal Republic. This was the first precedent shattering action of the Congressional Committee because never before in the history of the United States had a Congressional Committee extended such invitations to foreign governments.

Needless to say, the government of the U.S.S.R. and the Polish government in Warsaw refused to appear and give testimony before the committee. However, the government of the U.S.S.R. in their formal reply did attach the Soviet Medical Commission Report which they had compiled in January, 1944 and, therefore, it was made part of the record of this committee.

Recently we received an official publication of the Polish government, dominated by the Communists, which was published in May 1952 after the committee had concluded the public hearings held in London and Frankfurt. The photograph below shows the extent to which the TRUTH hurts the Soviets. This picture likens the committee to a group of KKK members because we had a masked man appear before the committee and give testimony in Washington. I wish to assure the reader that was not a publicity stunt. The masked man's identity has been completely hidden and if one of you were to see him you would know him again because of disfigurement. His family still is alive in Poland and would be subject to terroristic methods and the Lord alone knows what, if his identity were to become known. This was the first time that an official committee of Congress had a masked man appear before it.

When the Soviets turned down this committee's invitation to participate it was the signal for launching one of the most tremendous propaganda campaigns of vilification against this committee that the Reds had ever staged. This activity began in March 1952 and is continuing today against this committee. It has cost them hundreds of thousands of dollars in Russia and throughout the satellite countries to denounce the work of this committee. The question arises in your mind, WHY? As we were taught and as we know there is one thing that the Communists or Soviet regime cannot stand and that is the TRUTH.

I would now like to quote from the Congressional Record of July 2, 1952 from a speech delivered on the floor of the Senate by Senator Benton. The Senator described the legal work of this committee as raising a new hope for dealing with the Soviets through peaceful means based on the international law rather than through outright hostilities.

"For the first time in history, so far as I can determine, a committee of Congress and its staff have gone abroad in the sole pursuit of evidence from foreign nationals and to hold open hearings on foreign soil on an international question. This unprecedented and painstaking procedure, quite aside from the necessity of such procedure, has a tremendous long-range significance because of its effect on possible future adjudications of this international crime.

"With rare foresight, the committee has not only taken such verbal foreign evidence under oath, but has also then recast the evidence, in the form of individual written depositions sworn to before American consular officials in each of the countries where the evidence was taken. I have questioned the committee counsel, Mr. John J. Mitchell, as to the validity of such procedure. He has assured me that while this is pioneering and unique in the procedures of a congressional committee, it conforms wholly with the requirements of international law.

"The significance of this procedure will be immediately apparent to the Congress, I am sure.

"As all of us know, the first thing the Communists do when they seize any country is to suppress its universities and the vehicles of education and exterminate its intellectual leadership.

"Thus the legal and judicial procedures pioneered by this committee here, as well as in Europe, may well be of the utmost significance in the months and years ahead.

"One other aspect of today's findings has an immediate significance that could transcend the importance of the specific crime under examination. As the committee itself has recognized, there is a striking similarity between what happened to the Polish officers in the Katyn Forest and the events now taking place in Korea."

COMMITTEE'S FINDINGS

This committee unanimously agreed that evidence dealing with the first phase of its investigation proved conclusively and irrevocably the Soviet NKVD (Peoples' Commissariat of Internal Affairs) committed the massacre of Polish Army officers in the Katyn Forest near Smolensk, Russia, not later than the spring of 1940.

This committee further concluded that the Soviets had plotted this criminal extermination of Poland's intellectual leadership as early as the fall of 1939—shortly after Russia's treacherous invasion of the Polish nation's borders. There can be no doubt this massacre was a calculated plot to eliminate all Polish leaders who subsequently would have opposed the Soviets' plans for communizing Poland.

In the course of its investigation, this committee has observed a striking similarity between what happened to the Polish officers in Katyn and the events now taking place in Korea. We unanimously agreed that this committee would be remiss in its duty to the American people and the free people of the world if it failed to point out that the identical evasions by the Soviets to the Polish Government while the Poles were searching for their 15,000 missing officers in 1941, appear again in the delaying tactics now being used by the Communists in Korea.

This committee feels that Katyn may well have been a blueprint for Korea. Just as the Soviets failed for almost 2 years to account for the missing Polish officers, so to this day the Communists in Korea have failed to account for many thousands of captured United Nations soldiers. Among these are 8,000 Americans whom General Ridgway described as atrocity victims in his report to the United Nations last July, and the estimated 60,000 South Koreans still unaccounted for.

The Communists' delaying tactics in the Korean peace talks today may be from the same cloth as the nebulous replies received from the Soviets by the Poles in 1941-42 while they searched for their missing officers.

COMMITTEE RECOMMENDATIONS

This committee unanimously recommends that the House of Representatives approve the committee's findings and adopt a resolution:

1. Requesting the President of the United States to forward the testimony, evidence, and finding of this committee to the United States delegates at the United Nations;
2. Requesting further that the President of the United States issue instructions to the United States delegates to present the Katyn case to the General Assembly to the United Nations;
3. Requesting that appropriate steps be taken by the General Assembly to seek action before the International World Court of Justice against the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics for committing a crime at Katyn which was in violation of the general principles of law recognized by civilized nations;
4. Requesting the President of the United States to instruct the United States delegation to seek the establishment of an international commission which would investigate other mass murders and crimes against humanity.

(Editors Note)

Since the author has presented only the highlights of the investigation in this article he suggests that those interested in obtaining the complete record (available in the House of Representatives Report No. 2430, July 2, 1952) should mail a postcard to him at Room 112, House Office Building, Washington, D. C.

Korea: Why We Are There

By PAUL C. McGRATH '41—1st Lt., Infantry

A short time ago, I returned from a few days leave in all of the New England states, a leave which was very revealing to me because of the climate of information about the Korean conflict which I encountered. Being once again a soldier whose present assignment brings me into hourly contact with the documents that record plans and operations in Korea, I am distressed to report that I met only one man whom I considered informed or more than casually interested in the undeclared war which our nation has for more than two years been waging in the ancient Hermit Kingdom. Nearly all of my other acquaintances seemed to feel that it is somebody else's war, a strange sort of a campaign which is made the harder to comprehend because it has been fought in so many towns with unpronounceable names. I do not know how aptly my observation applies to all the men of Boston College, but it should not apply to a single one. I am not so far removed from undergraduate days that I do not remember the vigilance with which the professors at the Heights warned us of the philosophical and social evils of communism and the extremities to which its adherents would twist and turn in their endeavors to subvert mankind. It now seems to me that our farsighted professors in the 1930's and 1940's must have felt themselves remarkably alone in the intellectual world when one considers the attitude toward communism which was fashionable in that period on the campuses of other great universities. Some of you may even share with me the memory of an incident in which a prominent scholar, from an institution not far distant, invited Earl Browder to lend his broadening presence at a Sunday meeting of teachers, parents, and students. Mr. Browder may have fallen from grace, but still for sale is his Marxist panacea for the ills of the world. Our government has been taking dramatic steps to insure that neither we nor our friends in the community of nations find it necessary to commit national suicide by accepting the prescription which the Praesidium of the Communist Party would dearly love to force down our throats. Surely, it is the obligation of every Boston College graduate to remain abreast of the developments in the international war which is being conducted on a variety of fronts by the devious apostles of the communist conspiracy.

Already, several proud nations have lost their identities and are chained side by side on the rowers' bench of the Soviet ship of state. Other great nations: France, Italy, Belgium, Japan, with American help, have fought bloodless wars against their own communist parties, to remain independent. Our country has assumed a position of positive leadership in preventing communism from gaining the manpower, resources, raw materials, and industrial capacity essential to world domination. The initiative of our leaders and the generosity of our people have been demonstrated in different ways according to the form of the enemy's attack and the availability of our means; the Marshall Plan, the Berlin airlift, military aid to the embattled government of Greece, and the defense arrangements for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. From the global point of view, Korea is merely a different phase in a flexible American policy to restrain the lust of communism.

We could have let the communists have Korea. That was the apathetic attitude of the 1930's which invited World War II. Contemporaneous with our recent emergence as a principal power, however, there has developed a noticeable inclination on the part of our statesmen to associate with the newly acquired greatness a high sense of moral responsibility in dealings with nations less blessed than our own. We struck several blows in the right direction by diligent efforts to give material assistance during the chaos which depressed Europe after World War II, by an able administration in Japan, and by many noble actions in the United Nations. We had clearly placed the communists on guard that we were disinclined to withhold help when the welfare of others stood in jeopardy.

In Korea we find the case of a people who in modern times had never been truly independent of their Chinese, Russian, or Japanese neighbors, although in 1948 the southern half of the nation finally became, with United Nations approval, a sovereign republic. By early 1950, Korea was not considered by our government to be a part of our strategic, long-range defense. Japan, on the other hand, where our four division occupation Army was based, was included within the confines of our Pacific defenses. Why then did we intervene when the communist satellite state north of the 38th parallel invaded South Korea? We acted, not because our XXIV Army Corps once had occupied South Korea, not because we wished we had not withdrawn our last combat unit in 1949, not because we needed a foreign war to distract us from difficulties at home. The President ordered American participation in the defense of the Republic of Korea as a part of our larger plan to stop aggression and avoid appeasement wherever we could do so, thereby reducing the likelihood of a third global war. Those who view the Korean conflict as no more than an inconvenient little irritant that adds to their taxes might well ponder the consequences of allowing international communism to run rampant.

Let us note just one feature of what might have occurred had we turned our backs upon the Republic of Korea as the great powers ignored Manchuria, Ethiopia, and Lithuania in previous decades. In this hypothetical case the Soviet-equipped armies of North Korea would have dominated the entire peninsula in a very short time. Without the necessity of committing two Chinese armies in Korea, which developed late in 1950 after the collapse of the North Korean military machine, the officials of the Peiping regime would have been free to use force of arms for the furtherance of their designs in Indo-China, Burma, and the southeast Asia land mass Japan, the greatest industrial power in the orient, a nation which imports most of its raw materials from south and eastern Asia, would then have been manipulated into the position of buying almost exclusively from a communist controlled area or of existing on the charity of the United States.

The fact is we did intervene in Korea and it is worth knowing how that decision was made. The President was not in the capital and the Secretary of Defense and the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff returned from the Far East on the very day that the communists invaded South Korea. The attack took place on June 25, 1950, Korean time, but a fourteen hour time lag explains how the United States government learned of the aggression in the evening of June 24th. On Sunday, June 25th, the hastily assembled Security Council of the United Nations branded the North Korean action a breach of the peace. That evening, after flying back to Washington, D.C., the President summoned several of his principal advisers to Blair House which is across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House. Among those present were the Secretary of Defense, Louis Johnson, the Secretary of State, Dean Acheson, Army Secretary Frank Pace, Jr., Navy Secretary Francis Matthews, the Secretary of the Air Force, Thomas Finletter, Ambassador Philip Jessup, and the Joint Chiefs of Staff: Generals Omar Bradley, J. Lawton Collins, Hoyt Vandenberg, and Admiral Forrest Sherman. The news from Korea was alarming, but sketchy. It was reaching Washington through State Department channels as the Defense Department had not had responsibility in that country for a year. In Korea proper, the few American military advisers were under the control of our ambassador, John Muccio. No particularly startling decisions regarding Korea were made Sunday night at the executive residence, although steps were taken to arrange for the evacuation of United States nationals and the President authorized sending the fleet from its anchorage off the Philippine Republic toward Japan and decided to get some jet aircraft started toward the Ryukyu Islands.

On Monday, June 26, 1950, there was a second meeting, this one of great importance, for after weighing the advice of the conferees, the President determined to order United States aircraft and sea forces to support the Republic of Korea by attacking North Korean units south of the 38th parallel. In addition, he ordered the Seventh Fleet to neutralize the island of Formosa. At this point, it might be well to emphasize the great power which under our form of government the President has to make war. This is not to say he can declare war. Only Congress can do that. The President, however, as the first person of the land, inherits enormous executive powers and correspondingly grave responsibilities. He alone initiates our country's foreign policy and he alone enjoys plenary military powers as Commander-in-Chief. No Congress has ever refused to authorize a war when requested by the President. We have, to be sure, fought several extended engagements without declaration of war by Congress, beginning with the two year undeclared war against France in 1798, and including three years of hostilities in Mexico during the administration of Woodrow Wilson. As regards Korea, Congress has not declared war nor the existence of a state of emergency, although in June 1950 political opinion in both major parties was virtually unanimous in approval of the President's course of action.

The decision to use air and naval power in Korea was made by the President with the approval of the Secretaries of State and of Defense. Up to this point, there had been no communication with General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, the Supreme Commander Allied Paul C. McGrath, '41 A.B.; '48 A.M.; '50 Ph.D. (Boston University), was assistant professor of History at Boston College and Newton College of the Sacred Heart before entering the Army in 1942. Currently a first lieutenant assigned to the Office of the Chief of Military History, Special Staff, Department of the Army at the Pentagon, he has served in the European and China-Burma-India Theatres. The author of "Useful Genealogies" for the study of History (1949), and the text of "Korea 1950" published by the Army in 1952, is presently residing at 101 Leesburg Pike, Falls Church, Va., with his wife the former Jane Jarrett of Omaha, Nebraska.

Powers, in Tokyo. General MacArthur had had no tactical responsibilities in Korea since the withdrawal of the U.S. 5th Regimental Combat Team twelve months earlier. In the evening of June 26, 1950, Secretary Johnson directed General Bradley, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to advise General MacArthur that he was now in charge of the projected U.S. operations in Korea. The general accepted his new authority and later flew to Korea to estimate the situation. Political and military experts in Washington worked through the night preparing a statement on the use of the Navy and Air Force in the invaded Republic. The President re-worked the draft himself early in the morning of June 27th, and revealed his decision to help the Koreans to a Congressional delegation which consulted with him on that day. On the same day, the Security Council of the United Nations recommended that member states furnish such assistance to the Republic of Korea as might be necessary to repel the armed attack and to restore international peace.

As yet there was no plan by the executive branch to use United States ground troops offensively in Korea. Consideration had been given at Blair House to employing some Army forces to protect the port of Pusan and to cover the withdrawal of American nationals. After General MacArthur visited the front, however, he reported that the force of the enemy onslaught would make it impossible for him to perform his new mission in Korea without U.S. ground combat troops. At his suggestion, the Joint Chiefs of Staff permitted him to introduce into Korea from Japan one American regimental combat team, with authority to build up to two U.S. infantry divisions. The President had given his approval to using the Japan-based ground troops offensively in Korea on June 29, 1950.

These were desperate measures, particularly at a time when the hectic demobilization demanded by the people after World War II had reduced our Army to ten divisions, nine of which were badly understrength. Nevertheless, on July 1, 1950, our initial task force of combat troops flew into Korea and was fighting the enemy within four days. Thousands of U.S. ground troops followed, and many more than the originally scheduled force of two divisions were committed. To stem the communist advance, however, immediate action had been necessary. Even a short delay would have invited the extinction of the Republic of Korea.

The decision to aid the South Koreans was made with full knowledge of the possible consequences. It was a calculated risk, taken with the hope that a limited war in Korea would prevent a world war elsewhere. The record of the Eighth Army's successes and failures is a matter of public knowledge. I, for one, believe that the decision to aid our friends and not to abandon them to the common enemy, was wise and just, a decision which will add to our national prestige and bring us advantages commensurate with hardships suffered by our citizen soldiers in the harsh mountain ranges of Korea.

Coach Emeritus — Jack Ryder

By JERRY NASON

With a typical track man's explanation, "The legs won't take it any more," John A. (Jack) Ryder became coach emeritus of track at Boston College on Tuesday, September 16.

Thirty-three years of service to the Boston College Athletic Association made him, at the age of 76, holder of the record for that particular course.

His fame was national, but his ambition always had been no more than to serve Boston College with loyalty and devotion to his task.

It was not at all singular in his career that all the great track champions he trained and developed have always considered him the finest champion of all.

He is the richest of men, because he numbers his friends in the thousands, and his greatest joy was in devoting his talents and energies to those whose talents and energies were lacking, but who wished to attempt the sport of track.

He belongs and is in the Helms' Hall of Fame, in track, and two men who learned their coaching from him are also there — Johnny Magee of Bowdoin, Eddie Farrell of Harvard.

And Jack's replacement at the Heights, fittingly enough, is the captain and star weightman of his 1940 team, Bill Gilligan.

It is impossible to calculate the contribution this grand old man made to Boston College, because it far outreaches the long list of championships his athletes and relay teams achieved.

Of them, the champions, some were Jake Driscoll, Frank Daley, Tommy Meagher, Don Fleet, Dimitri Zaitz, Clarence Flahive, Jack Ingoldsby, Louis Welch, Tom Cavanaugh, Frank McCloskey, Bill McKillop, Dick Gill, Bill Dowd, Al Morro, Frankie Zeimetz, Angelo Sisti.

His coaching genius was recognized the world over. Among the more formidable tasks he attempted with club runners was the forging of Lloyd Hahn, a sprinter from Nebraska, into a foot racer who ultimately achieved five world records at distances from 1000 yards to the mile.

Jack was best known, perhaps, for developing a raw, powerful cross-country runner from Nebraska into the greatest indoor miler the world had ever seen.

This was Gilbert Dodds, who did all his training upon the Boston College campus and was a familiar figure to undergraduates from 1942 through 1948.

But track critics, while genuflecting to the old master for these two monumental coaching achievements, secretly feel that Jack's masterpiece was not Hahn, or Dodds, or the memorable Hal Cutbill and Jack Driscoll — but Herbert H. McKenley.

A decade ago McKenley, son of a country doctor in Jamaica, arrived on the campus with a fair reputation as a sprinter in the West Indies.

Within a year he prepared McKenley for the winning of two national championships before the foot racer failed scholastically at the college, and transferred to Illinois.

Ten years later McKenley was still beating the best in the world as a quarter-miler, lost an Olympic championship by inches, was holder of the world record for the distance, and had sped 440 yards in less than 47 seconds more times than any runner in history.

When Jack began his coaching tenure at the Heights in 1919, the era of Major Cavanaugh's mighty football teams, the college owned no outdoor board track for training. His first indoor team trained on a track which had been discarded by the Boston Athletic Association and was quietly rotting under the Harvard Stadium when Jack salvaged it.

In the years to come the Boston College runners who trained upon it won the New England intercollegiate team title for the first time in history, and on it trained the great relay foursomes which won I. C. 4-A. championships and broke world marks at the Penn Relays in the seasons of 1923 and 1924.

Running coach of the 1928 Olympic team, at Amsterdam . . . moulder of champions . . . most humble of men . . . staunchest of friends . . . wisest of counselors.

NEW TRACK COACH

BILL GILLIGAN '40

William P. Gilligan, '40, Jamaica Plain, has been appointed track coach succeeding Coach Emeritus Jack Ryder according to an announcement by John P. Curley, Graduate Manager of Athletics.

A member of the record breaking relay team of 1939 here at the Heights, he was an outstanding track star at Brighton High before coming to B.C. He also held shot and discuss records while in High School and College.

Bill has been serving as assistant to Coach Ryder since 1948. He is a teacher at Jamaica Plain High School, is married and has four children.

VARSITY CLUB PRESIDENT-ELECT

P. JOE KILLELEA '34

Peter Joseph Killelea, '34, was elected president of the Varsity Club at their June meeting. Other officers elected are: John J. Mahoney, '29, vice-president; John J. Brennan, '33, treasurer; Joseph E. Ingoldsby, '27, secretary.

The officers have held several meetings and have planned an attractive program for the coming year for Varsity Club members. The first event will be the showing of the football pictures by Coach Mike Holovak every Wednesday night at Alumni Hall. John J. Mahoney has been named chairman of this popular Wednesday night activity.

Club dues ($2.00) may be sent to the treasurer, Joseph E. Ingoldsby, 28 Artwill Street, Milton or to the Varsity Club, Alumni Hall, Chestnut Hill 67, Mass.

THE KICKOFF

By

CHARLES J. HARVEY '49

COACHES
KAVANAUGH, HOLOVAK, BOULEY

A new Boston College football season is at hand again, yet they're still talking about the Eagles' glorious finish against Holy Cross last year.

Things looked mighty bright when that game ended and the future seemed to cast a rosy glow on B. C.'s grid ambitions.

Well, matters haven't changed too much. Except, that a few of the boys, quite instrumental in upsetting Holy Cross, cease to be under the care of Coach Mike Holovak.

Losses such as these have slowed down the Eagles in getting ready for this new season. There has been experimenting with various players at new positions and various players without experience. A suitable replacement for Mike Roarke, one of the finest of offensive ends, who graduated last June must be found. This has been a problem. And in attempting to solve it, Coach Holovak must weaken his defensive team, for it appears young Bobby Flanagan, stalwart defensive end a year ago, might be the replacement.

On the surface, there is good material at the Heights. But this layer of talent is thin. If B.C. can go through the season without serious physical injuries, that rosy glow might blossom well.

Jimmy Kane, acclaimed the outstanding player of the Holy Cross game, is back with the Eagles and in wonderful condition. Jimmy's freshman year experience should start him off rapidly to gridiron greatness. He has added a few pounds and looks forward to a good season for the team.

Joe Johnson, it is hoped, will give another good account of himself at right halfback. The blond New Haven, Ct., product looks to be one of the best running backs B.C. has known for many years.

Throughout the line there are some very good football players and all are being called upon for possible two-way service. Veterans, Pat Cacace, Ed Wall, Mike Doohan, Jack Parker, Gil Rocha, Paul Sullivan, Bob Baggett, Jack Doran, Lou Florio, Bill Emmons, Henry O'Brien, Joe Coffey, George Pollinger, all led by Captain John Toppa must fill up the gaping holes of the B.C. line. New men from the freshman class of last year, Jim Coghlin, Chet Hanewich, Frank Marr, Don Morgan, Frank Morze,

Backfield:
LHB Danny Brosnahan; QB Jimmy Kane; RHB Joe Johnson; FB John McCauley.

John McDonnell, and of course, Flanagan and Tom Izbicki, will see service this year.

The backfield support fares fairly well what with Kane and Johnson getting aid from such boys as Danny Brosnahan, John McCauley, Joe Ahearn, Dick Zotti, Jack Irwin, Bob Cote, George Lovett, John McKinnon, Bill Stuka, Dick Charlton, and newcomer Dick Doyle. Two 1951 freshmen who may catch your eyes before the season is out are Donald Roche and Henry Son. Both have better than average speed and only lack some experience.

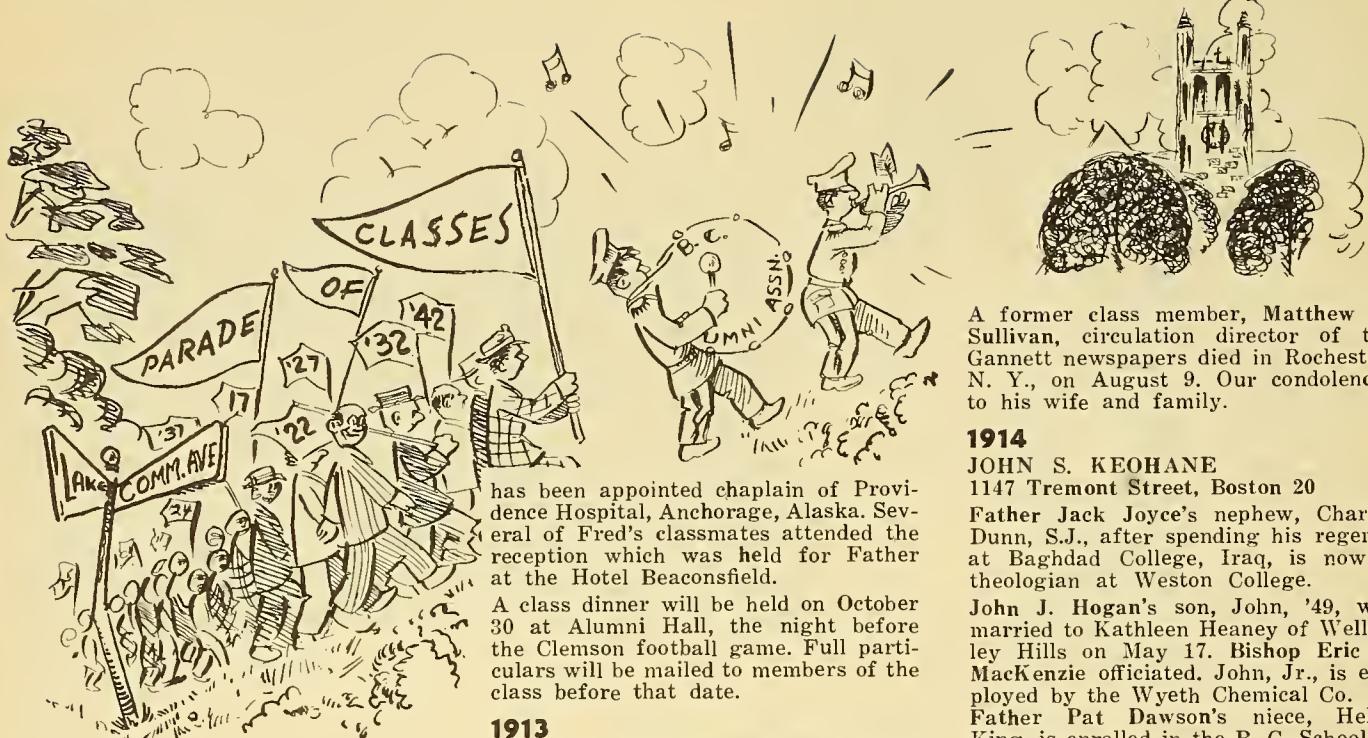

The season opened with Richmond on September 26. Richmond, last year, laid a foundation meant only for bigger and better football teams. It is now in its second year so most anything could happen. Wake Forest in Boston is always a tough assignment. Wake Forest at Winston-Salem, N.C., is the same story plus . . . this will be B.C.'s first visit to Wake Forest. Drake University from Des Moines, Ia., is still another unknown quantity. The Bulldogs from Des Moines only lost two games in nine last year.

Rival Villanova will never have a poor team. The Wildcats won five and lost three last year. They have a better team this year and a transfer back from West Point who will be something to watch . . . Fordham is back on its feet after having won only five of its nine games last year.

Then, comes Clemson. This game, if the Eagles can stand up through this season, will be a must. Coach Frank Howard, whose 1951 team won seven and lost three and played in the 'Gator Bowl', claims that his 1952 team will be one of his best and he has had plenty of great ones.

B.C. travels to Detroit, Mich., on November 7 . . . this look to be a good takein even though the Titans will definitely better their four and seven mark of '51 and pose a threat to all comers . . . 'Lil Xavier' appears at Braves Field on Saturday afternoon November 15 . . . hardly little, this team may be one of the strongest on the B.C. schedule this Fall . . . the Musketeers of Cincinnati, Ohio, have forgotten what it's like to have a losing season. Last Fall, Xavier won nine, lost none and tied one. Watch for this one.

Holy Cross, rated the best team in the East this Fall. The date: November 29. The place: Braves Field.

The Alumni Association congratulates Rt. Rev. Monsignor John A. Degan on the observance of the 60th Anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. The pastor of St. Mary's Star of the Sea, Beverly, celebrated his diamond jubilee with a pontifical Mass at which Archbishop Cushing presided.

Brigadier General Daniel J. Lynch, S.J., retired chaplain of the famed Yankee Division paid his annual visit to the Y-D encampment in New York this summer. Manoeuvres were held at the former Pine Camp renamed in honor of the late Lt. General Hugh A. Drum, LL.D., '23. General Drum was one of a well known Boston College family—his late brothers were: Rev. Walter F. Drum, S.J., '90, John D. Drum, '90, and Joseph C. Drum, '94.

1911

WILLIAM D. MURPHY

77 Waban Hill, North, Chestnut Hill 67
On June 3, the community and parish united in a double anniversary in honor of Rev. Ed Hartigan, pastor of St. Jerome's Church, North Weymouth. It was the celebration of his tenth anniversary as pastor and the thirty-fifth of his ordination to the priesthood. Father Ed attended U. S. Military Academy at West Point in the class with Generals Eisenhower and Omar Bradley after graduating from Boston College. He resigned from West Point after two years to enter St. John's Seminary. In World War I, Father Ed was a chaplain in France.

Rev. Ronald K. Dunfey, son of Fred Dunfey, was ordained June 7, at St. Aidan's Church, Brookline, by His Excellency, Most Rev. Dermot O'Flanagan, first Bishop of the diocese of Juno, Alaska. Father Dunfey is the first priest ordained for the diocese and he has been appointed chaplain of Providence Hospital, Anchorage, Alaska. Several of Fred's classmates attended the reception which was held for Father at the Hotel Beaconsfield.

A class dinner will be held on October 30 at Alumni Hall, the night before the Clemson football game. Full particulars will be mailed to members of the class before that date.

Rev. Walter Leo Flynn, Phenix, Rhode Island, has been promoted to the pastorate of St. Mary's, Newport, R. I., the home of his classmate, John P. Curley, graduate athletic manager. His promotion was in appreciation for the work he did at Phenix, where he started a school, bought a convent and rectory and improved the church. Father Walter was always amiable and industrious when he attended the Heights, and was a daily commuter from Providence.

Rev. Francis L. Shea, pastor of St. Michael's, North Andover, observed the 35th anniversary of his ordination in June. Congratulations.

A former class member, Matthew G. Sullivan, circulation director of the Gannett newspapers died in Rochester, N. Y., on August 9. Our condolences to his wife and family.

1914

JOHN S. KEOHANE

1147 Tremont Street, Boston 20

Father Jack Joyce's nephew, Charles Dunn, S.J., after spending his regency at Baghdad College, Iraq, is now a theologian at Weston College.

John J. Hogan's son, John, '49, was married to Kathleen Heaney of Wellesley Hills on May 17. Bishop Eric F. MacKenzie officiated. John, Jr., is employed by the Wyeth Chemical Co.

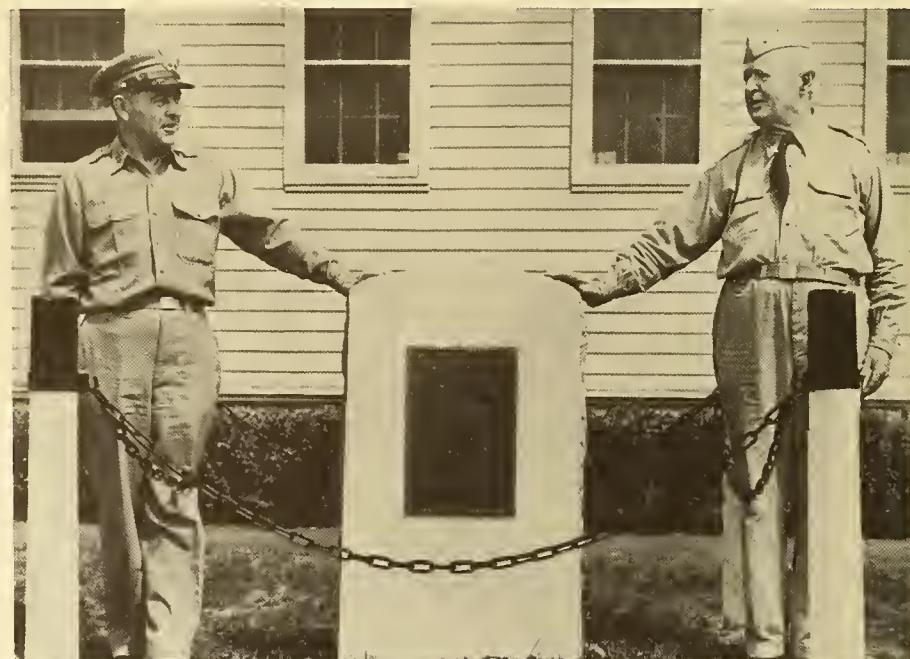

Father Pat Dawson's niece, Helen King, is enrolled in the B. C. School of Education.

Bill O'Sullivan beams with grandfatherly pride as he announces the birth of a granddaughter (the fourth child) to Mary (Regis) and Bill Finucane (H. C.).

Fred Doyle's son, Dick, a football star at B. C. High and a transfer from Georgetown last year, is a member of the football squad at the Heights.

The sympathy of the class is extended to Tom O'Hare on the death of his father, James O'Hare, R.I.P. Tom's nephew, Father Frank of Revere was celebrant of the Mass.

John Keohane's brother, Father Mark,

Brigadier General Daniel J. Lynch (retired) right, Boston College, with Major General William H. Harrison at memorial plaque to General Drum.

'24 has been named pastor of the newly established St. Bartholomew's parish in Needham.

1916

JAMES L. O'BRIEN
41 Pond Circle, Jamaica Plain 30

Leo Madden was recently honored by the citizens of Weymouth on his 25th anniversary as principal of the Bicknell School.

Rev. Bernard McNulty has been named administrator of St. Gregory's, Dorchester.

Bill Murphy's championship baseball team played in the finals at Fenway Park.

Kindly remember in your prayers George Daley's brother and Father Jim Brennan.

1917

THOMAS D. CRAVEN
42 Mellen Street, Dorchester 24

The Thirty-fifth Anniversary was observed at the Heights on Saturday, June 14th. Following a Memorial Mass in the chapel of St. Mary's Hall celebrated by Fr. Dullea members of the class gathered in Alumni Hall for breakfast. Twenty-one sat down. Among those present were: Fr. Dullea, Fr. John Connolly, Joe Dee, Jack Doyle, "Porky" Flynn, Frank Heanue, Marty Higgins, John Mahoney, Jack McCarty, "Mose" Murphy, "Bunny" O'Sullivan, Bill Reid, Les Shea, and your humble scribe.

Some of the class had their wives with them. Fathers Dullea and Connolly spoke. Great interest was given to the talk "Bunny" O'Sullivan gave about his years in Japan and China.

Fr. Frank Caffrey, missed the gathering by a day. He arrived in Boston in time to observe his twenty-eighth anniversary as a priest at Maryknoll in Brookline. Dr. Charley Twomey and "Porky" Flynn met him at the train.

Jack Doyle reports that Jack, Jr. will be commissioned in the Navy from OCS at Newport in October.

Les Shea informs us that son, Tom, is entering in Pre-Medical.

"Mose" Murphy tells us that son, Russell, is in the Cardinal O'Connell Junior Seminary and that son, Maurice, is a junior at B. C. H. S.

Joe Dee has moved in from the country and is living at 276 Winthrop St., Medford.

Jack McCarty reports that son, Laurie, entering senior at H. C. has been active in debating and in track activities.

Bob Fitzgerald, now at Stonehill College, has been adding to his fame as a writer by his interesting talks on the plays of Shakespeare in which he develops the human interest values.

Fr. John Connolly, pastor of St. Bridget's Church, Framingham Center, has been named dean of one of the fifteen deaneries of the Boston Catholic archdiocese. His deanery includes Framingham, Ashland, Hopkinton, Holliston, Sherborn, Natick, Wayland, Marlboro, Hudson, Cochituate, Wellesley, Weston, Maynard, and West Acton. Several years ago Fr. Connolly organized the Catholic Guild for the Blind and directed its activities for ten years. His interest in the work for the blind he maintains through being a trustee of the Perkins Institute for the Blind.

M. FRANCIS NOLAN
26A Shepard Street, Cambridge 38

In addition to your correspondent the following members of the class enjoyed a luncheon on Alumni Day at the Commonwealth Country Club and afterward watched the ball game: Bill Cashin, Frank Gallagher, Marty Kane, Charlie Sexton, Bill Herlihy, Jack Creed, John "Silk" O'Loughlin, Bill Carey, Clarence Greene, Jack Doherty, Jack Dunn, John Corcoran, Frank Crowley, Charlie Fitzgerald. Father Remi Schuver who expected to be with us was unable to make it.

Bill Herlihy's two older boys are students at Phillips Exeter Academy. B. C. prospects, we presume, Bill?

When we heard from Father Otis Kelly, St. Zepherin's, Cochituate, Mass. in June we were pleased to hear of his recovery from pneumonia. Hope you are well and strong again Otis.

Jack Creed, M. D., brings us up to date, for which we thank him; Surgeon — Hale Hospital; Medical Examiner — Haverhill district; Medical Advisor to Essex County of National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Family: Son Jack, Jr., married, completed one year B. C. Business School; working for St. Johnsbury Express Co.; two children, John P. 3rd and Janis. Daughter Anne graduated Regis College June 1952, married June 14 to Fernand C. Corbeil, Jr., Jane, student at Colby Junior College, New London, New Hampshire.

We are still trying hard to get enough of the class together for a dinner in the Fall, preferably during the week of the Holy Cross game. Drop a card to me telling me you will attend and we will go ahead with arrangements, notifying you later of the details. We are certain we will have prompt responses from all classmates mentioned in these notes but how about it, Charley Riley, Tom Reynolds, Jack McCarthy, Myles Connolly, John Hoban, Clarence Pike, Dan Harkins, Paul Lynch, John Roman, Babe Ramisch, John Manley, Frank Gately, John McNamara, Louis Sullivan, Jim Donovan, Jim Rooney, Jack Sargent?

The class is grieved to hear of the death of Joseph J. Burke of Dorchester. Condolences are extended to his family.

FRANCIS J. ROLAND

10 Homewood Road, West Roxbury 32

The Class had two tables at the Alumni Day outdoor festivities. Those who failed to appear missed an unforgettable evening — the perfect setting, the well-planned programs and the same old "gang" — why were YOU among the missing?

Rt. Rev. Joseph A. Robinson is pastor of St. Mary's, Brookline. The Roxbury District of Boston in connection with the annual Roxbury Day celebration has established a public speaking contest in honor of Henry J. Gillen, late trustee of the Boston Post. Frank Renahan has been awarded the degree of Doctor of Oratory by Staley College of Expression. We hope that the Alumni officers will put Frank "Demosthenes" Renahan on the next Alumni Day program.

Many members of the Alumni, clerical and lay, attended the recent funeral of Mrs. Joanne V. Scollard, mother of the late Rev. "Gat" Scollard, at St. Theresa's Church, West Roxbury. Bishop Eric F. MacKenzie, '14 presided. May she rest in peace.

Rev. Edward Douglas, S.J., popular College professor has been assigned to teach Religion for a year at Loyola University, California. His address there is 7101 West 80th Street, Los Angeles.

1920

J. ROBERT BRAWLEY

33 Pomfret Street, West Roxbury 32

The Class extends its congratulations to Monsignor Thomas McNamara who was recently elevated to his new rank. John McMorrow, Edmund Higgins and Joe Joyce served on the committee that sponsored a testimonial to Monsignor Tom at John Hancock Hall in early September.

Ed Finnegan, Medford High teacher, received several favorable notices from the Boston dramatic critics on his acting in the Summer Theatre at Hancock Hall.

Frank Glavin and Frank Dillon have retired from the Boston School system. Father Steve Shea and Frank Dillon have been incapacitated by sickness during the past few months. Their class is rooting for a speedy return to health for both of them.

1921

GORDON F. IRONS

9 Emmondsdale Rd., West Roxbury 32

Judge John J. Burns wrote an excellent review of Whittaker Chamber's book "Witness" for a recent number of the "Boston Sunday Post."

Dr. I. Francis Gregory played the title role in "Springtime for Henry" staged in Cambridge City Hospital nurses' auditorium by the friends of the hospital.

Joe Doyle and Mrs. Doyle were recent visitors to Boston. Joe is sales manager for the Mary Lee Candies, Inc., and lives in Norwalk, Ohio. His son, Joe, Jr., B. C. '51, is in Korea. His daughter, Grace, is with her husband, Lieut. Greger, in Austria. His son, Tom, is a third year student at U. C. L. A.

Henry L. Ford has been appointed principal of the James P. Timilty Junior High School in Roxbury.

Bernard H. McGrath has retired from his teaching position at Boston English High School.

Bob Foy is one of the directors of the present Loyalty Fund Drive and will accept contributions from members of the Class.

Judge John J. Sullivan is recuperating from a serious operation during the summer.

Ed Gallagher's son, Dan, is a sophomore at the College.

Arthur F. McCarthy, now of Philadelphia, was in Boston recently. Arthur is a member of the committee in charge of the Red Mass in that city.

1922

NATHANIEL J. HASENFUS

15 Kirk Street, West Roxbury 32

The class was shocked to learn of the accidental death of Rev. James E. Fahay, D.D., pastor of St. Ann's Wayland. Our sincere sympathy to his family. Condolences also to the family of Frank Carron, master of the Oliver Wendell Holmes School, Dorchester who died in May. R.I.P.

Albert Chapman, Washington, D. C., visited his Alma Mater, Latin School, and was happy to find classmate George McKim doing a fine job as Headmaster. Nothing but good is the news of the work of Mayor Frawley of Lynn.

Monsignor Sherlock, head of the Parochial schools, was Commencement speaker at Mercy College in Portland. Your correspondent was Commencement speaker at the Stratford School in Boston, and also spoke at the Conference of Maine Writers in Ocean Park.

Arthur Tierney's daughter is the first daughter of the class to be co-ed at the Heights, where she has joined her brother who is a junior.

Ned Sheehan promising son of William graduated from the College in June. Also graduating was Bill Torphy, Jr., son of Judge William Torphy of Fall River.

1923

FRANCIS L. FORD
9 McKone Street, Dorchester 22

Come next June we will be the thirty-year class celebrating on the Heights on Alumni Day. Naturally, we will give our officers all the assistance we can, and for those who may have missed our election returns of last March we supply the results: President, Joseph L. Sweeney; vice-president, Dr. Philip McGovern; secretary, Frank L. Ford; treasurer, George F. Olesen. There will be our regular gatherings before the June assembly, so stand by for announcements later.

Congratulations to two of our "Ex Members" who celebrated their silver anniversaries in the priesthood last May, Rev. Francis A. Curley, pastor of St. Theresa's Church, Sherborn, and Rev. Laudslaus Ciesinski, pastor of St. Stanislaus Church, Ipswich were singularly feted and remembered by their respective flocks for their excellent work among them. These fine priests left after their sophomore year at Boston College to enter Brighton Seminary. Our class is justly proud of their accomplishments and offers its prayers for their health and happiness in the vineyard of the Lord.

Our popular classmate, Joseph Comber, was the principal speaker last May at the Communion breakfast of St. Ann's Holy Name Society, Peabody. Joe is also president of the Catholic Charity Center, and secretary of the Boy Scout Hospital advisory Committee.

We were deeply grieved to learn of the death of classmate, William L. McNulty who passed away in Santa Fe, New Mexico, last April 18. The material, supplied by Walter Dimmock, was too late for the previous class notes. "Will", one of our highly popular and gifted members, was special editor and columnist of the Santa Fe "Mexicana", a daily newspaper. He was buried from St. Francis Cathedral on April 21. May his soul rest in peace.

We have learned from various sources that these things happened since our last notes:

Cornelius O'Connell received a well-deserved promotion in the Boston School system; Myles Sweeney of the Boston Record, underwent a serious operation and is still convalescing; your Scriptor celebrated his Silver Anniversary last June.

Our sincere condolences to George F. Olesen whose mother passed away in August, and to Dr. Leo Desmond whose sister died during the summer.

1924

ANTHONY E. LeBLANC
45 Maynard Street, Arlington 74

Rev. Anthony J. Flaherty, "Tony" to you, was appointed pastor of St. Andrew's, North Billerica last June. This appointment came after a long stay as head of the Somerville Catholic Charitable Bureau and chaplain at the Home of the Little Sisters of the Poor.

Rev. Mark H. Keohane has been appointed pastor of St. Bartholomew's, a new parish in Needham. Congratulations to the new pastors.

Paul Wengers was awarded a D. Ed. this year.

James F. Grady has been transferred from his duties at the American Embassy in Buenos Aires and is now stationed as a roving Ambassador at the principal spots in Italy. Jim and his wife and children spent the month of June at Scituate before he left for his new post.

Your correspondent has been appointed an assistant insurance examiner with the Massachusetts Department of Insurance. Two members of our class are now connected with this department — Tommy Kelleher was raised to the post of principal examiner in June. Dr. Walter Carroll's son, Edward is member of the Freshman class at the College. Eddie is a hockey player of no mean ability and will no doubt bring glory to Boston College in the field of hockey.

After twenty-five years rumors have reached your correspondent that Frank Wilson ("Squash") is living in Worcester with his wife and ten children. So far as is known his address is 38 Merrick Street.

EDWARD J. O'LEARY
22 Bailey Road, Arlington

A most pleasant and most successful class dinner was held at the Commonwealth Country Club last June. Present were: Fr. Joe Doherty, Fr. Jerry Gearan, Jim Ahearn, Bill Donahue, Dan Donovan, Jack Flynn, Sonny Foley, Gene Giroux, Bill Glavin, John Good, Dr. Gene Gorman, John Hanrihan, Frank Hennessey, Al Hyland, Anthony Julian, Joe Kozlowsky, (Red) Dan Lynch, Fred Mahony, Bill Marr, Frank McGrehan, Ed Mockler, Charlie Monahan, Ed O'Leary, Ed O'Neil, Arthur Reilly, Dr. Charlie Shea, Ed Spang and Jack Tierney.

Dr. (Ph.D.) Jim Tobin has authored another book "The Happy Crusaders" which was recently published by McMullen of New York. Jim is on the staff of the "Catholic Book Club" and on the "Panel on Contemporary Literature for the Barclay St. Institute." The sons of Arthur Reilly and Ralph Good are now freshman at the Heights and Gene Giroux' son, who graduated last June, is now in his first year at the Law School.

Gerry Hayes organized a three-weeks pilgrimage to Ireland, London, Paris, Lourdes, Rome and Fatima this fall for the Paulist League members and friends. Gerry is a member of the Archbishop Cushing Charity Fund and has accompanied the Archbishop on all his pilgrimages.

Anent the clergy:

Fr. Johnny Parsons after twenty years as curate at St. Thomas' in Jamaica Plain is now administrator in Rockport.

Fr. Barney O'Rourke was recently appointed pastor of St. John's in Townsend.

Fr. Pat Riley was given quite a write-up in a Connecticut paper last summer when he was a feature speaker at a high Communion breakfast in Ansonia. The account listed his degrees (he's a Ph.D.) and the several books he's authored. Father Pat is historian for the Knights of Columbus of which he's a Fourth Degree Knight.

The condolences of the class are extended to George F. Donovan whose father, John J. Donovan died suddenly in St. Louis, Missouri on June 29. Further word from George brings news of his appointment to the staff of the U. S. Ambassador to India as cultural affairs attache assigned to the special task of consulting with the faculty and students of Indian universities and intellectual leaders. The former president of Webster Groves College, Missouri, is well qualified for his new position having been cultural advisor and chief of education in U. S. occupied Germany until July 1 when he returned to the States. He and Mrs. Donovan sail for New Delhi this month, and we wish them good luck.

WILLIAM J. CUNNINGHAM
40 Tennyson Street, West Roxbury 32

The old school year wound up nicely on Alumni Day with quite a few of the old boys appearing, but of course, nowhere near our anniversary crowd. It was a very pleasant day. We were delighted to see Dr. Halpin there with his son.

Your correspondent hopes all had a fine summer and wishes to announce that he is still looking for an ambitious soul to take over writing these notes.

Enjoyed a particularly fine day at Scituate early in the summer, playing Hatherly with Johnny Dooley and Tom Cavanagh, then dining with the Cavs. Walt Morris was down there at the time at a meeting with new Alumni president Donahue. We managed a few words together.

We spent a little time at Megansett where we found Paul Myron up from Washington. Paul is deputy director of the Alien Property division of the U. S. Treasury Department. Also there was Ed Mullowney — had a nice round of golf with him at Pocasset.

Visited Joe Beecher who has a beautiful home in Cotuit. He is very happy on the Cape, with a handsome office on Main Street, Hyannis. Chet Arnold and his wife had visited the Beechers earlier in the summer. Murray Regan got down there also, and we just missed "Bowler" Johnson who was visiting Megansett from Harwichport.

John Dooley had some of the boys over to his Scituate home in the middle of August — I had to miss it because of my own vacation.

Tom Flavin, whom most of us haven't seen for a long time, is chief law officer in the Department of Agriculture of the Federal government.

Does anyone recall Tim Joe O'Connell? He's manager of the Worcester office of the Mass. Bonding Co.

Our Walt Morris has been elected one of five directors of the Everett Chamber of Commerce. What a busy guy! Member, Board of Directors of the Alumni Association; past president of Everett Rotary; director of Everett National Bank; past State Advocate, K. of C., member of Everett Elks and the Belleview Golf Club.

FRANCIS X. SULLIVAN 51 Presentation Road, Brighton 35

The 25th Anniversary was a grand success. Ninety of the class were in attendance at the Memorial Mass on Alumni Day. Most of them attended both functions. Present were: Rev. John E. Brown, Walter Bowler (Newark, N. J.), Charley Bridey, Joe Bruton (Long Island, N. Y.), Howard Buckley, Jack Buckley, Frank Burns (Albany, N. Y.), Rev. Ed Carey, Vin Carolan, Dr. John Carroll, John Cavanaugh, Dr. John Cicchetti, Ed Colbert, Jack Costello, Jim Cotter, Tom Coughlin, Mike Creed (New Haven, Conn.), Neal Cronin, Paul Dalton, Marty Davis, Henry Deary, Jack Desmond, Rev. John Devlin, S.J., John Donovan, Jim Dougherty, Jack Duane, Ed Dumas, John Eaton, Henry Farley, Rev. Bernard Fiekers, S.J., Ray Finnegan, Pierce Fitzgerald, Joe Flynn, Tom Gallagher, Fred Gannon (Hempstead, N. Y.), Rev. Jim Geary, S.J., Tom Good, Marty Griffin (Malverne, N. Y.), Fred Harkins, Charley Hayden, Tom Heffernan, Pete Hickey, Joe Hopkinson, George Horwood, Joe Ingoldsby, Tom Keefe, Frank Kelly, Phil Larkin (Verona, N. Y.), Monsignor Walter Leach, Charley Leddy, Paul Liston, Norris Luddy, Rev. Joe Lyons, Dr. Tim Lyons, Bill Marnell, Phil McArdle, Rev. Joe McCall, Luke McCloskey, Fred McDermott, Joe McKenney, Bill McKillop (Laconia, N. H.), Denny McNamara, Dr. Frank Moran, Tom Murphy, Bill Murphy, Dr. Gene Nicgorski, Dan Noonan, Joe O'Brien (Falls Church, Virginia), John O'Connell, (Larchmont, N. Y.), Vin O'Connell, Ray O'Donnell, Bob O'Donnell, Bill Ohrenberger, Dan O'Leary, Tom O'Keeffe, Flavel Ray, Ed Richardson, Rev. Joe Ryan, Paul Seymour, Dave Sullivan, F. X. Sullivan, John E. Sullivan (Revere), John E. Sullivan (Ashmont), Ed Sweeney (New York City), Marty Tierney, Jack Toohey, Walter Waldron, Jim Walsh, George Ward, Dr. Bob Welch.

Monsignor Leach celebrated the Mass at which Father Joe Ryan preached a very poignant and appropriate sermon. The relatives of eight of our thirty-three deceased were guests of the class. All had been invited.

To chairman Joe McKenney (Mass) and Howard Buckley (Alumni Day) go our sincerest thanks. They did outstanding jobs. Some of the 215 "old grads" wives and "kids" who came to the Family Communion were seeing the Heights for the first time or after a long interval. Alumni Day will long be remembered.

Mayor Hynes of Boston shown with Thomas C. Heffernan, '27, newly-appointed Executive Secretary of the City of Boston Civic Improvement Committee.

Our sympathy to Joe McKenney on the death of his father recently, and to the wife and family of Joe Flynn who died in July. A former headmaster at the Haggerty School in Cambridge, Joe, who had renewed old acquaintances at the 25th celebration, died after a short illness. May he rest in peace.

Marty Davis is now director of Massachusetts prison camps, a new and expanding advancement in Penology. Flavel Ray has gone into business for himself as free lance writer and advertising consultant. He operates from his home at 51 Rustlewood Road, Milton. Our thanks go to Ray Finnegan of the Boston Globe for his excellent publicity in the June issue of the News and in the Boston Globe. The Globe gave '27 a whole page in the "roto" on July 16. Now we begin to warm up for the 30th, 40th, and 50th Anniversaries.

FRANCIS P. CAREY 59 Sanborn Avenue, West Roxbury 32

Dick Condon has been elected president of the Board of Trustees of the Boston City Hospital.

Dan Driscoll, Charlie Driscoll, Jack McGillivray, Dick Condon and yours truly recently had a dinner meeting to iron out the problems concerning the notification of the class on the approach of our 25th Anniversary. There will be an announcement mailed to each classmate in the near future informing them of the steps we have taken to raise our class gift. Please give the notice your most worthy attention.

Father Chris O'Neil has recently been stationed with the Lynn Catholic Charitable Bureau.

"Pete" Carey was recently presented another nine pound baby. This time it's John Henry. (Little plug for the sec.).

Please drop me a line with news items for this column. It's the only way we can keep it up to date. Any item, family, business or otherwise about '28 classmates will be welcome. Send them to me at the above address.

1929

JOHN J. SPENCER 527 Broadway, South Boston

This was a travelling summer for some '29ers.

"Shiner" Keenan took his wife and son to the K. of C. conventions in Los Angeles. In San Francisco he visited with Ed Hogan, '30, now vice-dean of the U. of California Law School. The Keenans visited all the national parks and places of interest even Tijuana. Shiner is willing to advise anyone contemplating a journey and will give an illustrated travelogue at our fall dinner meeting including how to drive down the side of a house.

John Mahoney also went West (temporarily) to the Democratic Convention and beyond.

The Spencers (wife and six children) met Bob Hughes at North Scituate this summer.

Leo Donahue, new Alumni president, did a bang up job organizing and running Education Day at the Heights in May.

Father John Fitzgerald was in town briefly.

A courier from Los Angeles reports that Jack Barnwell has been sick. Jack has been doing a great job out there and we all wish him a quick recovery to perfect health. We hope that "Ike" Shea's Sea Pines prospered this summer. Ed Lee was down that way, too. If you have any business with Venezuela, Bill LaFay is the man to see as counsul at Boston.

JOHN F. DWYER
45 Belvoir Road, Milton 86

Comdr. Joseph C. Canty, USN, Staff Chaplain Sea Transportation Service, supervises the work of 25 Navy chaplains serving on board MSTS ships. His office is located at the Service's Atlantic headquarters in New York.

Nicholas J. Wells has been doing special assignment work in the Lynn Public Schools, specializing in the methods of observation and treatment of retarded youngsters. Nick has been president of the Child Welfare Conference of Lynn, is a member of the Boy Scouts of America advancement committee, and holds the Navy rank of Lt. Comdr., Reserve Officers Surface Division 1-21 at Lynn.

Another Lt. Comdr. Naval Reserve is William A. "Bill" Tracy who was recently appointed to the military staff of Governor Dever. Bill is practising law in Salem and is an attorney with the U. S. government. The Tracys are the parents of six sons and a daughter.

Rev. Brendan McNally, S.J., enjoyed Alumni Day at the Heights last June. Father Brendan has retained his youthful enthusiasm for all our class activities.

Congratulations to Irving L. Stackpole upon his election as Vice-Commander of the Mass. Veterans of Foreign Wars. Drs. Tom Cavanaugh and Bill O'Connor have been burning up the fairways at Hatherly and Oyster Harbors this summer. Tom Kelly has been scoring well at Wollaston.

Judge James M. Langan presided over several District Courts on Cape Cod during the past summer.

We acknowledge receipt of an interesting letter from Paul Mahony outlining suggestions for our 25th reunion in 1955. Thanks, Paul, for your helpful interest. A meeting will be called this Fall to make definite reunion plans. John T. Foley, M.D., is associated with the City of Boston Health Department and also maintains an office at 1101 Beacon St., Brookline.

Father Victor, C.P., (Joseph G. Donovan) is taking advanced courses at the Passionist House of Studies in Springfield on leave from the Monastery at Brighton.

Welcomed back to Boston at the Heights on Alumni Day was Jim Hurney, now located here with the Internal Revenue service.

Our Class reunion dance at the Philomatheia Club House last June was both a social and financial success. Approximately thirty couples enjoyed the festivities.

Rev. Neil H. Donahue, S.J., pastor of the National Shrine of Jamaica, B.W.I., lectured at Kimball Hall, Holy Cross College, last June. Father Neil was on hand to greet his classmates on Alumni Day and gave a series of sermons in greater Boston churches during the past summer.

His many friends and classmates extend their best wishes for his continued success to Jack Hayes in his new position as professor at St. Sebastian's Prep School, Newton.

Congratulations are in order for John E. Hurley upon his recent appointment as Clerk of the Boston Municipal Court for Civil Business.

Congratulations to Dr. and Mrs. William J. Sullivan on the arrival of their second daughter and sixth child. Bill was on hand to enjoy the Alumni Day activities.

Rev. Joseph W. Murphy, S.J., was recently the guest speaker at the Milton Council, K. of C. Communion Breakfast under the chairmanship of Tom Kelly. We are pleased to learn that both John Coleman and Frank Tallino have recuperated from their recent illnesses. The Class has been honored by the elevation of Rt. Rev. Donald A. McGowan to the rank of Monsignor. Associated with the National Catholic Welfare Conference for several years, he is now director of the Bureau of Health and Hospitals with offices at 1312 Massachusetts Avenue, Washington 5, D. C.

Rev. Edward S. Galvin is chaplain at the new U. S. Veterans Hospital, Heath Street, Jamaica Plain.

RICHARD H. FITZPATRICK

10 Hill Street, West Somerville 44

We were gratified to hear that our distinguished classmate, Bishop John J. Wright of Worcester, was chosen the outstanding alumnus of the year at last June's Alumni Day. The Bishop was presented the McKenney Medal. In part, the citation read: "for performing outstanding and worthy service to the benefit of the Catholic Church so as to reflect honor on Boston College." Needless to say, our class in particular, as well as the Alumni in general, takes pleasure in warming itself in the sunlight of new honor and achievement which have come to our Episcopal classmate.

Atty. Joe Schuler was a candidate for a seat in the House of Representatives from the third Middlesex district. Joe has served as legal assistant to the Counsel for the Massachusetts House of Representatives and as legal assistant to the Commission to Revise and Recodify the General Laws of the Commonwealth. Joe is married, lives in Cambridge, has four children.

Rev. Ed Flaherty of the Holy Name Parish has been appointed chaplain of the West Roxbury Council, K. of C. Rev. Philip Kearney is the new head of the Catholic Charitable Bureau in Boston. He is a former Air Force chaplain and was director of the Catholic Servicemen's Bureau.

Rev. Robert Carr, S.J., is pastor of Holy Trinity church in the South End, commonly known as the "German" church.

John E. Reinhardt, '31, newly appointed Wareham postmaster.

George O'Connell's son has won a scholarship to B. C. High; Rev. Bill Donlan is stationed at Blessed Sacrament Church, Cambridge; among the men who showed up on Alumni Day were: "Dud" Walsh, John Powers, John Hart, Jim Barrett, Jim Dolan, Frank Regan and Charlie Brooks.

Father Charles Flanigan's traditional hospitality was enjoyed by classmates who attended the usual delightful luncheon. Special guests of our host and the class were Rev. George V. Kerr, '41 and Judge John Connolly, '30. Tom Harty expressed regret at not being able to attend our last get-together. It's been a long time since we saw Tom. Hope he can make it this year.

Tom Horne is teaching math at Somerville High School. He is also a bit of a country squire with a growing reputation as an authority on flowers and plants. If any alumni are thinking of forming an Alumni Dahlia Club, Tom's your man.

Lt. Col. John Keefe is presently on duty in Japan. He did a stint of eighteen months in Korea. George Evans is chief probation officer in Essex County. Mike Curran is an inspector in the Post Office department. John Walsh is Postmaster at Newton Upper Falls, and another P. O. man is Al Flannery. Two sons of Ed Connolly are now enrolled at St. Sebastian's. Doctor Bill Devlin is practising in Springfield. Also in Springfield is Frank Bertsch, now assistant to the president of American Bosch Co.

Charlie McCarthy reports that Tom Walsh is recovering his health in fine style.

Charlie Dolan has charge of transportation and communications for the Latin-American branch of the State Department.

Rev. Owen McKenna, S.J., has temporarily transferred his allegiance to Holy Cross where he is a professor. Owen was down for Alumni Day — it was great to see him again.

Gene Lawlor has a son in the Freshman class at B. C. He also has a daughter in the School of Nursing and another lad attending classes at the College. We rather think that three offspring in attendance at the same time is some kind of a record for an alumnus.

JOHN P. CONNOR

24 Crestwood Circle, Norwood

Phil O'Brien, manager of the Federal Social Security Field Office, has been made assistant surplus property officer to aid the National Defense program through the recovery of idle machine tools from educational institutions.

Bernie Dee, a guard at Concord Reformatory, was recently slashed but only slightly wounded by a prisoner.

Paul Connor is teaching at a Junior High School in Winthrop. Paul received the highest degree from Staley College last June — Doctor of the art of Oratory.

Fred Meier was appointed director of the summer school session conducted annually at the former Hyannis Teachers College. Fred is also Dean of Men at Bridgewater State Teachers College. The Boston Post recently ran a feature story on the life and success of Ed Herlihy. Ed is admittedly one of the busiest and highest paid figures in radio and television today.

After eight years of writing, Father Dan McColgan completed in two volumes the history of the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

Tom Connolly is now assistant credit manager at McKesson Liquor Co., Boston.

Last June 8 a class get-together for classmates and their wives was held at Alumni Hall. The program opened with Benediction at which Rev. Fred Minigan officiated. An enjoyable buffet supper followed.

J. RAYMOND CALLEN

17 Alden Road, Watertown 72

It is with great sorrow that we learned of the death of our classmate Dr. Cornelius C. Curley on June 25. The sympathy of the class is extended to his wife and family. Dr. Curley's death coincided with his parents' Golden Wedding anniversary.

The following members of the class were seen at the Heights on Alumni Day: Justin McCarthy, Zan Romano, athletic director at Plymouth High; Frank O'Halloran, still a bachelor; Bob Graney, now principal of the new Stone School, Walpole; Jim Connolly, Vin Cosgrove, Bill Sullivan, Charlie O'Brien, Jack Quinn, Dr. Owen Mullaney, Dr. Chris Conway, Jim Powers, Walter Kiley, "Bucky" Warren, John Brennan, Walter McDonald, with his wife and child; Frank Lang, Bob Perchard, Father John Foley, John W. Mahoney, Father George Lawler, Roger Walsh, Bill Ryan and yours truly.

Tom Connolly has been superintendent of the Joseph B. Thomas Hospital in Peabody since 1947.

Joe Licata is associated with the Sheraton Plaza Hotel chain in the auditing department. He has two sons.

Ed McHugh had a new arrival recently his fifth child. Matt O'Malley also has five children — four boys and a girl.

Congratulations to Jim Connolly on the birth of a daughter — Mary Ann, a playmate for his son, Francis.

Lt. Col. John F. Dobbin recently completed a nine months course at United Kingdom's College in Chesham, England. John is expected to be stationed at Quantico, Va., on his return to the U. S.

Father Jim Cullinane is a chaplain in the Navy.

Joe Gibbons is superintendent of schools in Stoughton.

Don't forget — It is not too late to contribute to the Alumni Fund.

WILLIAM J. FITZSIMONS

40 Court Street, Boston 8

The members of the class extend their sympathy to the family of our late classmate, Rev. Gabriel G. Ryan, S.J., who died suddenly on September 17, 1952. Father Ryan was among the leaders in the class and was noted for his oratorical ability. At the time of his death he was Chairman of the Department of Economics at Fairfield University, Connecticut. He was also director of the Diocesan Labor Institute and associate director of the Fairfield University Radio News Program.

Ray Funchion has just completed a very successful season at the Rayfun Day Camp which he conducts on the North Shore. Ray is a teacher in the public schools in Danvers. The class is well represented in the Division of Employment Security where Charlie Greeley, Jim Hinchey, Ted McDonough and John Prendergast are employed in the Boston office and Jim Griffin is employed in the Pittsfield office.

Bill Kean of Brighton has been appointed as assistant professor in the English and Social Studies Department in Westfield State Teachers College. Bill was formerly an instructor at the U. S. Military Academy at West Point. Dr. John Nicholson was married on July 26 to Grace V. Conley of Newton at Saint Ignatius' Church. Dr. Dick Maloney of Milton was best man. Among the ushers were Bob Mead and John Halloran.

EDWARD J. PHILLIPS, JR. 7 Dickinson Road, Brighton 35

The 15th reunion on Alumni Day was a great success. Our class reunion which was held at Alumni Hall was well attended. Tom Gaquin who has been Class President for the past years reluctantly resigned. We owe Tom a vote of thanks for the time and energy he expended in our Class and Alumni activities. A vote was taken and Bill Doherty was unanimously elected President. Jim McInerney, Sales Manager for National Distillers, is back in Boston. Joe O'Brien and "Fuzzy" Fitzgerald are still fighting it out for the Class Father spot at our 25th reunion. Coming back from N. Y. on the Merchants, I met Jocko Conlon who is a buyer for the Lincoln Stores. Joseph V. Holland, Chairman of the Methuen School Committee and the Zoning Board of Appeals, is practicing Law in the Lawrence Area. Gail Cavanaugh, who has been teaching at the Lawrence High School for the past eight years, is also Manager of the Chemical Dept. of the Marine Biological Laboratories. Fred Gorgone, who is living at 106 Nevada St., Newton, has received his third promotion within a year. He is now the Principal of the Mitchell School in Needham. Mike Mooney, living in Scarsdale, N. Y., has been appointed General Counsel for the N. Y. Curb Exchange. Joe Vaas is now a proud father. Arthur Conley has been elected Counsel and Manager of the Insurance Federation of Mass. in addition to his duties as Legislative Counsel for Mass. Taxpayers. A class dinner is being planned for the near future and you will be informed by mail as to date, place and time.

The credit for the success of our Class Dance on September 19 at Alumni Hall goes to Jim O'Donoghue and those who assisted him in making arrangements Paul Mulkern, Frank Stapleton, Jim O'Hare, Tony D'Natale, Bill Gannon, Hank Chiarini, Joe Butler, Dr. Dick Stanton, Ed Hines, Paul Neelon, Jim Donovan, Frank Toomey and (Cambridge) Jack Gately. Father Dick Burke, S.J., attended one of the meetings before leaving for Belgium where he and Father Larry Mullin, S.J., have gone for further study.

A Class Smoker and Sports Night will be held during the football season. Notices will be sent out.

Frank Albani and Bob Fleming have been added to the list of benedictis in our class. Frank married Georgenia Ulrich of Natick last May. He is a salesman for the United States Slicing Machine Co. Bob's bride was the former Jeanne St. Saveur of Watertown. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Louis Gallagher, S.J., at St. Ignatius Church on the Heights. Bob, a Commander in the Navy and his wife are living in Washington.

Roger Neelon has opened a general insurance brokerage with offices at his home 10 Tavern Road, Waltham and in Boston. The Neelons have two boys. Although we can't claim him as a classmate John J. Curry, Cambridge's new City Manager was presented a Ph.D. degree by Boston College at our graduation in 1938.

Joe Runci has been appointed director of the Social Service Division of the Boston Department of Civil Defense. Joe and his wife the former Alice O'Connell, Dr. Bill O'Connell's sister make their home in West Roxbury. They have one child.

Dr. Salvatore Manconi has been made city physician of his home town, Revere, where he also conducts a private practice. During the second war he was decorated for his medical work in concentration camps. Sal married an Army nurse whom he met while in the service, Blanche Cheyick of Minnesota. They have two daughters.

Rev. Edward S. Stanton, S.J. pronounced his final vows last month. Father Stanton is teaching at Holy Cross.

Bob McGinnis is a trustee of the library in Milford.

Last July, Janet Tinkham became the bride of Major Dan Barry, USMC in Hingham. A party of friends from the Poland Spring House, where Dan was Assistant Manager, flew down from Maine to attend the ceremony.

ARTHUR A. LUCIANO
640 River Street, Mattapan 26

October 19th has been chosen as the day of the Alumni Communion Breakfast. Our president, William O'Halloran requests that all our class be present at this occasion. So let's all meet on this day and make the 1947 Business School an active representative of the Alumni Association.

Dan Surrete now finds himself at Taunton, Mass., as manager of the W. T. Grant store in that city. He was a bit disappointed not to have seen more of our class colleagues on Alumni Day. So let's not forget to see him on October 19th.

Paul Costello is now a salesman with the Industrial Engineers, Inc., at Boston. Paul is also the proud father of a baby girl.

Arthur A. Luciano is associated with the United Realty, Inc., of Boston as Assistant General Manager. I am now acting as Alumni News correspondent for our class and wish to take this opportunity of appealing to all my classmates to participate in the Alumni Communion Breakfast on October 19. All the '47 Business School men will be glad to know that our colleague of the Social Science School, Ralph Feliciano, has announced his engagement to Miss Helen Guiney, a Emmanuel alumnus. Wedding bells will ring on Valentine Day next. Congratulations and best of luck to you, Ralph, from all of us.

DON'T FORGET — OCTOBER 19th ALUMNI COMMUNION BREAKFAST.

Manny Karas is the new assistant buyer in the Men's Clothing department at Raymonds and doing very well. We're very happy to hear that Jack Graham has been promoted to assistant sales manager of the Washington, D. C. branch of North American Cement Co., although we do wish Jack were a little closer to home. Jack writes that he, Marion, and their baby girl are fine. Also heard from Joe and Kate Cotter who are still in Brooklyn where Joe is working as an auditor for Price-Waterhouse.

Two more of the gang are leaving the ranks of single bliss: Jim Murphy and Claire Cowan will soon tie the knot and we have to admit Claire must be good at picking them.

Also Phil Spillane who will be married this fall to Janice Bell of St. Albans, Vt. Phil is circulation manager of the St. Albans Daily Messenger.

Generoso Alfano, recently married, is doing public accounting in Boston.

Jack Turner is still managing his liquor store when he's not down at North Scituate surrounded by bathing beauties.

Almost got a parking ticket in Boston last week until I looked up and saw Officer Al Madden smiling sheepishly at me.

Joe Lane and his wife dropped back to Boston for a week's vacation last month. Joe is still with North American Cement.

Drop me a line and let me know how and what you fellows are doing. See you at the football game.

Lt. Brendan P. O'Donnell, USMC, '50, U. S. Naval Base, Portsmouth, N.H., recent recipient of the Combat "V" for heroic performance against the enemy in Korea. As the bell in the tower on the Heights beckons the undergraduates of Alma Mater back for another scholastic year the men of '52 find themselves answering other calls and hearing other bells than those at Chestnut Hill.

Wedding Bells: Lt. Ed Queeney went down the aisle shortly after Commencement with his pretty bride, Ann Marie Brow of Scituate. They are residing in Oklahoma. Not long afterward Jack Finnegan exchanged vows with Rosemarie Peloquin of Holbrook. They are living in Quantico, Virginia where he has assumed duties as a 2nd lieutenant in the Marine Corps.

Jack Donovan of Sub Turri fame and now with Firestone in Akron, Ohio, will soon take Joan Quigley as his bride; Lt. Kenny French, USMC, has informed us of his engagement to Betty Doig, Winthrop; Johnny Vinchesi, former baseballer here at the Heights has announced that he and Barbara Ann Holley are to be wed sometime in the fall.

Bugle Class: Instead of trying to make the 9:20 bell in the morning, Bill DeGiacomo, Bob Kincaide, Charlie Brown, Jimmy Brooks, Jim Callahan and Bucky Cabana are now trying to make that morning call at Quantico, Va., where they are serving as second lieutenants in the Marines.

School Bells: Still answering the school bell are: Frank Dooley at the Law School; Paul Clinton and Nick Loscocco both at Harvard Business School; Sam Ballerini, B. U. Graduate School, and yours truly at the Law School.

Time Clocks: Punching the clock for a living are: Bill Costello with National Cash Register; Bill Killoran and George McCormack with Campbell Soup Co., and Fernando Barsanti with Boeing in Seattle, Washington.

That's all for now and if any of you fellows have any news you want passed on mail a postal to the above address. Patrick J.
